Western Newspaper Union News Service. State Food Commissioner C. E. Harman finds that manufacturers of beer and near beer are placing their product on sale in many Nebraska towns, especially in towns that recently went dry. He intends to enforce the state food laws which require the percentage of alcohol, no matter how small it may be, to be branded plainly on the label. After dealers in drinks comply with this law they run the risk of being prosecuted under the Slocum law of Nebraska or being taken in hand by federal authorities for selling intoxicating liquors without a government "license." If their goods contain more than 2 per cent alcohol, they must obtain a permit or license tax from the government. If they sell drinks containing alcohol they are likely to be prosecuted by watchful local people interested in enforcing the state law against the illegal use of intoxicants.

Issues Booklet on Primary Election.

Secretary of State Pool is now ready to furnish county clerks and other persons with the complete vote of Nebraska, by counties, in the state primary election of April 18. He has had the figures printed in pamphlet form, making a book of 80 pages, besides the cover. This is the first time that the primary election vote has ever been officially published by the Tabulations given in the pamphlet show that since the first state primary election in 1907 the total vote has increased by 156 per cent. The democratic vote alone in 1916 was a little larger than the vote cast by all 1907 was 79,273, and this year it was 192.033.

In the eight years from 1908 to 1916 the democratic primary vote on governor increased from 32,577 to 79,716, the republican vote on governor in- current biennium. creased from 50,282 to 94,496, or 88 per cent.

Government Wants Property Man.

Governor Morehead, as commanderin-chief of the Nebraska national guard, has been asked by the federal war department to nominate some commissioned officer of the state troops to act as property and disbursing officer of the war department. The appointment will be made by the secretary of war, upon the governor's recommendation. The salary to be paid is $700, with additional allowance for expenses.

It will not require a man's entire time to perform the duties. Adjutant General Hall, who has heretofore been acting in that capacity, thinks that not more than three to five months' time in a year will be necessary. Whoever gets the place will do the work at the national guard headquarters in Lincoln, but will not necessarily live here. Some lively competition for the place is expected.

The secretaries of the state board of health have just finished conducting an examination of applicants to practice medicine. Twenty young men occupied seats in the senate chamber trying their best to answer the questions of the secretaries. A large majority were men just graduated from medical colleges and have fresh diplomas in their pockets. Under the Nebraska law a diploma merely entitles the holder to a chance to show further evidence of their qualification by taking another examination before the secretaries of the state board

Referee in 2-cent Fare Case.

Attorney General Reed, the state railway commission and Attorney J. A. C. Kennedy for the railroad company have agreed on Frank H. Gaines of Omaha, as referee to take testimony and make findings to the federal court in the Missouri Pacific 3-cent fare injunction suit. The federal court some time ago issued a temporary injunction enabling the railroad company to collect this rate from its patrons, and it is now doing so, except between competitive points, where it charges the same as other lines.

Treasurer Hall Defendant in Suit.

Food Commissioner Harman, whose department has charge of the inspection of weights and measures all over the state except in the larger cities, believes that, as a general thing, the measuring pumps by which oil firms sell gasoline to automobile owners and users give purchaser the full amount that he pays for. These pumps, says Harman, have been under inspection right along. Occasionally one is found that runs short measure, and in every such instance it is either corrected or condemned.

OFFICERS' SCHOOL

To Be Held June 21 to 29 at State University Farm.

The officers of the Nebraska national guard, according to announcement of Adjutant General Hall, will attend an officers' school to be held on the athletic grounds at the state university farm June 21 to June 29. Last year the school was at the state fair grounds. Two years ago the university farm was chosen and the officers "messed" at the university department of home economics. They will do the same this year. It was with difficulty that General Hall obtained the services of regular army officers as instructors this year on account of the demand for officers in the regular service in Mexico. He has been assured of the services of Cactain William B. Wallace, Lieutenant P. G. Wrightson and Lieutenant S. M. Parker, all of the regular army.

Copies of city newspapers, the Daily Nebraskan, the 1916 Cornhusker, university catalog, and a number of photographs were sealed in the box placed within the cornerstone. Included in the photographs were pictures of Chancellor Avery, Prof. H. H. Nicholson, first head of the chemistry department, Prof. Rachel Lloyd, the second head, and photographs of the chemistry societies. A number of chemicals were also placed in the RAVES ABOUT OUR GARDENS First Aid to a Writer Says They Are So Ravishing, So Sunlit, Abounding in Freshness and Beauty.

"I can't say enough in praise of the American gardens! I think I should rave about them if I ever let myself go" exclaimed Miss Carlisle "They are ravishing-so sunlit, abounding in freshness and beauty! Do you realize that they are so brilliant that I can never show paintings of American gardens in the same room with English gardens, because they make them look quite dreary? Their one fault is that there is often too much statuary in them, and too much of it irrelevant. Frequently, too, they are not rambly enough, and seem a little self-conscious. In English gardens small stones mellow with years are used. and the furnishings add that warmth which breeds intimacy. It is the informal garden that attracts the artist.
