200 STEERS

If you have plenty of rough feed for cattle you will find no kind of stock more profitable than good quality two-year old steers like these. They are high grade, mostly Shorthorn types, and have good growthy frames and will make the man who buys them a good profit if sold off the grass next July. No cattle you can buy will pay better for the feed. They will eat or can be handled with less trouble or shelter, and remember they are ready for market earlier than any other class of cattle you can buy. For surest and largest profits buy two-year old steers. We will sell these cattle in bunches to suit purchasers and give time on them to responsible parties having sufficient feed and shelter to care for them.

PRICES FOR POULTRY AND EGGS.

Reports from cold storage houses disclose a great shortage of stored poultry and eggs, and conditions indicate that prices will be higher than ever before this season, says the poultry department of the university college of agriculture.

Prices ruled high early last year, and packers bought sparingly, awaiting a drop in price that did not come. This year, like last, finds the price high and little poultry stuffs in storage. As demand outstrips supply, prices will continue to soar. For this reason, a producing flock will be worth more than ever before.

Many a good man has been classed as questionable because he didn't have the nerve to live up to his convictions.
