

Clyde Malone Attends National Urban League Conference

Voice to Award Scholarship

In keeping with the purpose for which this publication is intended, a Scholarship will be awarded on the basis of merit to a High School graduate each year, beginning in 1947. It may be used in any university or technical school the winner may select. The student's scholastic standard will receive customary consideration, but added to this will be adaptability and willingness to accept responsibilities.

Dramatic Club And Community Chorus

Mr. George Randol will direct a dramatic club and community chorus at the Urban League.

His experience and training, as a Broadway actor, motion picture director and concert singer make for interesting and professional instruction. Plans are already under way and included in it will be Serious Drama, Choral Singing, plays, comedies and pantomimes. The classes will meet each evening at 8 p.m. and everybody is invited to join.

The Voice

The Voice, yes the Lincoln Voice today makes it's debut.

Not a plaint nor altogether is it a voice of hilarity. But rather a determined, indomitable voice making an appeal for a united effort on the part of the Negro citizenry of this great educational and cultural center to raise sights to higher goals.

A voice crying out to Lincoln citizens at large for greater opportunities in fields of employment that we might live more abundantly. A voice asking for tolerance and fair play. A voice that will not be stilled so long as any group is denied inalienable rights guaranteed under the constitution.

A voice urging our youth to complete college educations.

Voice stressing the dire need of trained, enlightened, Christian leadership, cautioning against loose living.

A voice denouncing unscrupulous politicians who would sell us down the river.

A voice asking fuller cooperation among our churches. Pleading with Negro business to assist in making greater opportunities for Negro youth who have prepared themselves to assume increased responsibilities.

A voice constantly championing the cause of the underprivileged. Finally a voice that shall ever listen to that "Still Small Voice" that has guided men on the upward trail since the beginning of time.

Housing and Employment Major Interest

Executive Secretary, Clyde Malone was among the 300 persons attending the four-day session of the National Urban League Annual Conference, which closed its sessions at Kiel auditorium Saturday September 28, in St. Louis, Mo.

With speakers ranging from a Navy admiral and millionaire's son to labor leaders and ordinary laymen, the conference was filled with discussions and reports on the year's work in the 96 cities where there are Urban League affiliates.

Endorsement and support of the "crucial efforts of democratic unions to organize the South" was pledged.

Noting that "only through increased industrialization of that region with equal freight rates and the organization of southern white and Negro workers can permanent be made in the deplorable conditions of both;" and the forces that oppose and terrorize any close fraternity of white and Negro people" the resolution stated the League would urge full support of the "democratic unions" by the Negro community and urge "non-democratic "unions" by the Negro community and urge "non-democratic" unions to discontinue their practices.

A resolution on World Peace declared this country's first "obligation to the welfare of nations is the job of implementing our bill of rights and making America a place where the guarantees of its Constitution are without prejudice or favor in the protection of every citizen." Coupled with this achievement, the resolution continued, "there must, of course, be a wise and generous foreign policy consistent with democratic ideals."
