Rev. R. E. Handy, Pastor

Sunday School was in charge of Superintendent, Melcena Goolsby.

Rev. R. E. Handy filled the pulpit Sunday morning, his first Sunday for the new conference year. He spoke from the subject, "Why We Believe", using as a theme, Lord, Increase our faith. Luke 17:5b. Services were well attended and two persons united with the church, Mrs. Eva Smith, by letter and Miss Dorothy Molden on confession of faith.

Mrs. Margaret Williams who represented the Missionary and church at the Nebraska Annual Conference, held in Atchison, Kansas, gave a very interesting and complete report.

Services at Northside church of God were good for October 13. The regular monthly children's service was very inspiring. Little Clara Moody recited a prayer poem and little Miss Wilma Jean Hutchinson gave a reading and sang a solo.

The first of a series of Forum meetings was held at 6:00 p. m. during Christian Crusader Hour. The discussion topic was "Youth Looks at the Church" It was ably led by Mr. James Braxtor, student at the University of Nebraska. The "Forum" will meet on each 2nd and 4th Sunday at 6 p. m. Topic for October 27 will be "The Christian's Double Citizenship." All young people, especially University students are urged to attend. Evening worship sermon was preached by the pastor: "A great conversion and Yours". Sister Jewell Walker, mother of Mrs. Clara Wimes was a visitor. Come worship with us, if you have no church home.

EVERYBODY SHOULD BE IDENTIFIED WITH SOME CHURCH.

Sunday School Lesson

Theme—Paul Trains For His Life Work. Acts 9:19b-27; 11:22-26; Gal. 1:17-24.

The early years of work in the life of any famous man who ultimately achieves greatness, and accomplishes great things, is always interesting, for there, generally, we will discover the characteristics of the man as revealed in his later work; the methods which he employed to achieve the results he desires, and his capacity to endure persecution and overcome opposition. There is no question about it, that the greatest man in all the world of the first century was the Apostle Paul, and the greatest missionary of all times was this man Saul of Tarsus, whose life and epistles have been the inexhaustible subjects for study, and unending fountain of inspiration and strength for Christians during nineteen centuries. It is, then, with the beginning of his great life work.

The time implied by the phrase "Certain days," is generally considered to have been a brief one, similar to the time that Peter tarried with Cornelius, and the short period spent by Paul and Barnabas at Antioch, as well as the short period during which Paul was detained at Caesarea before his hearing by Felix, and to another period. Paul's three-year retirement in Arabia must be placed between verses 22 and 23 of the passage we are studying. Luke does not record this Arabian episode, because he is not writing a biography of the Apostle Paul. He may perhaps have undergone at this time one of those five Jewish scourgings, of which he wrote later. The same murderous spirit rose against him as had risen in himself against Stephen. In these adversaries he saw his former self, and by that self could measure their fury.
