Honor Dr. Carver

New York Herald Tribune: We honor Dr. Carver not alone for the scientific achievements which finally won him world renown. We honor him also as a great humanitarian. Thru a long career as director of agricultural research at Tuskegee Institute he permitted no patents to be taken out, no commercialization of discoveries which revolutionized agriculture in the south. He refused profits either for himself or for his race. When he died he was receiving only the salary with which he had started at Tuskegee. He was a great American. We do well to honor him.
