Founders' Day Speakers Express Views on Vital Matters

by Charles Washington
Anti-poll tax and anti-lynching legislation will pass the house of representatives this session; but unless the senate votes to limit debate, they will be filibustered. Death in the senate, was the opinion voiced by Congressman A. L. Miller of the fourth Nebraska district Thursday in a press conference. He also said he was in favor of strengthening the civil right laws so that the federal government will be given more power to see that citizens are not deprived of their civil rights.
