THEME: Parables of Jesus (Temperance).

TEXT: Mark 4; Luke 15:11-24.

The parable of the Soils. The first recorded parable uttered by Jesus has come to be known as The Parable of the Sower, and in illustrations of the parable, artists have made us familiar with the figure of the sower of Palestine throwing his seed broadcast. From a study of Jesus' interpretation of the parable, one sees that the truer title would be the Parable of the Soils. The emphasis is not upon the sower, nor his manner of scattering the seed, nor is it upon the seed. Jesus did not bid His disciples take heed how they sowed the seeds, He bade them take heed how they received the seed, how they heard.

The Seed Is the Word of God. This parable is typical in the way in which it deals with a spiritual idea. Such ideas cannot be precisely defined or expressed in anything like a scientific formula. They have a wealth of meaning which can be explored only by patient and careful thinking. To get that process begun in any human mind the idea must be planted in it by some vivid and forcible presentation which will make it real and of deep interest. This is what the parable of Jesus did for His hearers and still do for us. It was the way in which He sowed the word.

The Parable of the Prodigal Son. This parable tells us that God's love for His erring children is not destroyed by their waywardness and sin. But it also tells us that waywardness and sin drive their victims into far countries and bring them down to the lowest depths of want and misery. It tells us that those who seek to use the lives that God gives them as the means of self-gratification are really choosing the way of death, even while they are exulting in the thrills of appetite and passion as being the very essence of intense and vivid living. It is only when he sees the utter folly of his ways that the sinner really comes to true human selfhood. Only when he returns to the order and discipline of his father's house does the prodigal really live.

Leaguers Win 1, Lose 1 Game; Quinn Chapel Drops 1 to Omaha

By Howard Molden.

The Omaha Northside Y.M.C.A. basketballers edged past the Urban League cagers and the Quinn Chapel team on the hardwood at the Urban League gym last Saturday, Feb. 26, by defeating the Leaguers 25 to 17, and then going on to defeat the powerful Quinn Chapel five by a score of 25 to 24. Roland Delaney led the scoring for the Leaguers by dropping in 10 points.

Last Wednesday the Leaguers travelled to Everett School for their first game of the city tournament. After being on the short end of the scoring at the half by a score of 17 to 7, they came back in the last half to defeat Vonville by a score of 25 to 24. Sonny Walker led the scoring with 9 points, Roland Delaney followed with 8.

This week on Tuesday night, the leaguers found themselves pitted against the Church of the Brethren, who have won six games and lost two in the Church League in which they have been playing all season.

who has been a background adviser to the UNESCO student group, said that students among those that first approached him on the working model plan were Robert Nicholls and Bev Huttner of Lincoln, Shirley Quissenberry, Jamaica, N. Y., Susan Allen, Pierce; Gerald Young, Lexington; Marsha Tepperman, Omaha; Audrey Rosenbaum, Chicago and Phyllis Cadwallader of Kearney.

During the sessions, which were under the general direction of Ted Sorensen, Lincoln law student, hot debates fanned between the 43 represented countries over such problems as the redistribution of world surplus labor and technical assistance for countries needing it. Compromises brought solutions in cases where the questions were within the scope of the meeting.

Coming in brotherhood month, the UNESCO meet was most timely and points out that many differences in our country between cultural and racial groups can be worked out, if people really desire it, by peaceful methods.

During the conference students received advice and guidance from such renowned public and UNESCO representatives as Archibald MacLeish, Dr. Albert Rosenthal, University of Denver, Dr. Richard McKeon, University of Chicago, Miss Constance Roach, UNESCO staff representative and Chancellor R. G. Gustavson of the University of Nebraska.

Dr. McKeon explained that the United Nations Educational,

Scientific and Cultural organization (UNESCO) has a clear-cut seven point program of reconstruction, education, natural sciences, social sciences, the humanities, culture exchanges and education (including the exchange of professors and students).
