THEME—The Psalms We Sing.
Psalms 23; 42; 46; 90; 121; 148.
The Psalms in Christian Worship

From the very beginnings of the church, Christians have sung the psalms. In the dwelling houses in which the earliest converts gathered in the evening for worship, long before any church buildings existed, they sang "psalms and hymns and spiritual songs" (Eph. 5:19). When, later on under the stress of persecution they sought in the catacombs a place in which they could worship unknown to their enemies, they continued to make the psalms part of their offering of praise and thanksgiving. As the church grew the psalms were sung in the churches and cathedrals and monasteries.

In the stormy days of the Reformation, the Protestants translated psalms from the Latin version which had been used in western Europe for a thousand years, into French, and German, and English, finding in them the language of their own souls, the expression of their own deepest experience. Today the hymnals of the various Protestant communions contain many of the psalms in metrical translations, while many other hymns are adaptations of psalms or are filled with the phrases from them and inspired by their thought. In metrical versions the psalms were long the main element in Scottish and English religious song.—Tarbell.

'If' For Missionaries

If you can hear God's call, when those about you
Are urging other claims and call on you;
If you can trust your Lord when others doubt you
Certain that He will guide in all you do;
If you can keep your purpose with clear vision,
Bear lack of sympathy, yet sympathize
With those who fail to understand your mission
Glimpsing His world task through your Master's eyes.

If you can work in harmony with others
Yet never lose your distinctive aim,
Mindful that ever among Christian brothers
Methods and plans are often not the same;
If you can see your cherished plans defeated
And tactfully and bravely hold your peace,
Nor be embittered when unfairly treated,
Praying that love and good-will may increase.

If you can trust to native Christian brethren
The church you've built in lands across the sea
Seeing in them as your growing children
Promises of men that are to be;
If you can lead those eager, weak beginners
By methods indirect, your life, your prayer,
For failures and mistakes, not judge as sinners,
But their growth in grace your earnest care.

If you can share with humblest folk your virtue;
If noble souls are richer for your touch;
If neither sighs nor adoration hurt you,
"If all men count with you, but none too much;"
If you can fill your most discouraged minute
With sixty seconds worth of patience true,
Yours is the task with all the challenge in it
You'll be a missionary through and through!

Doctors List Polio Symptoms

The more common symptoms of polio are listed in a Health Talk released by the Illinois State Medical Society.

The onset of the disease is rapid. The first stage is comparatively mild. Among early symptoms are sore throat, a "head cold," nausea and some vomiting.

There may be some fever. Diarrhea may occur or there may be considerable pain, particularly in the muscles of the legs and arms. Fatigue is evident, and frequently the appetite disappears.

Tremor or trembling of the hands and other parts of the body and pain and stiffness in the neck and back are important early symptoms.

These symptoms may occur in any combination, says the Health Talk, and it takes an expert eye to identify and interpret them. Later the appearance of definite muscle weakness or paralysis confirms the diagnosis.

July, August, September and October, are peak polio months.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis warns:

"Looks with suspicion on even minor upsets in children during "polio time." Call a doctor immediately if a child shows even slight signs of illness when cases of infantile paralysis appear in the community. Keep the child by himself and away from other children until the doctor arrives.

"He may not have infantile paralysis, but let the doctor decide."
