THEME—Jeremiah, a Spokesman of God. Jeremiah 1: 14:7-22; 20: 22:1-23; 32:6-10; 37-39.

The Power of God's Spokesman. Whenever a true prophet of God appears, he is the central figure of his time. Not that his contemporaries know this, for true prophets are seldom recognized by the people to whom they speak. Jeremiah was regarded as a combination of a fool and traitor by the priests and prophets and politicians who regarded themselves as the great men of the day in church and state. But time has a way of putting men and events in their true perspective, and now we know that Jeremiah was the only man in all Jerusalem whose life and work had any lasting significance. Had it not been for him, and the others who had preceded him in the prophetic succession, we should not now have the least interest in the history of Judah.

What would the Scotland of his day have been without John Knox? And yet one of the trusted servants of Mary Queen of Scots, Sir James Melville, in all of his extensive correspondence, never mentioned John Knox. Knox was only a spokesman for God, valiant for truth. He saved Scotland, but to many of his contemporaries he seemed a quite insignificant preacher.

What would Europe of the seventeenth century have been without Luther and Calvin? But in that day emperors and kings, cardinals and popes all seemed far more important in their plottings and schemings, their wars and diplomacies. It was the men who dared to speak out for the unseen realities of God who saved Christianity by asserting its essential truths which a corrupt church had forgotten.

What would England in the eighteenth century have been without the Wesleys and Whitfields? But the men of their day could have named scores of more important and more powerful people. We now know that they saved England by putting a new moral force into her life. There was the tremendous power of those who speak for God.

and help these boys carry on the good work.

Rev. and Mrs. Bletson, pastor of Grant chapel, visited Mr. and Mrs. Nora Washington Monday evening.

Mrs. LeRoy Watson and Mrs. Sam York visited the Lincoln school Tuesday afternoon.

Tuesday (Nov. 22) Elwood Glee Club and the Elwood school band were presented in a concert.

Well folks, this is about all for this week. See you again soon. Bye now!

Highlighting the activities on the campus this week was the observance of Religion in Life Week. Outstanding features on the program were convocations with two prominent guest speakers. Monday and Tuesday in the Student Union ballroom, students heard Dr. Arnold Nash, professor of religion at the University of North Carolina, who lectured on "Collegiate Religion" and "Campus Marriage."

Wednesday and Thursday Dr. Daniel Blarn, medical director of the American Psychiatric association, gave addresses on "Spiritual Sanity" based on individual personality.

Climaxing the Religion in Life Week program was a trial of Roswell Howard, president of the Student Council. The prosecuting attorney, Rex Knowles charged that Howard was grossly negligent in the living of his life. The jury, composed of the editor of the Daily Nebraskan, five Mortar Boards and five Innocents, felt that it was impossible to find a measuring stick whereby it can be determined whether or not a man is living up to his fullest capabilities. Howard was defended by Ted Sorensen, a student of law at the university. The visiting Dr. Blain was one of the three judges in the case. The other two were David Dow and G. W. Rosenlof, the university Registrar and Director of Admissions.
