

Senate Gives F.E.P.C. Final Death Blow for This Session

BY ALICE A. DUNNIGAN

WASHINGTON. (ANP). The fair employment practices bill was struck another death blow last Wednesday when the Senate came up nine votes short of the 64 necessary to invoke cloture on the motion to take up the FEPC measure.

Of the 88 senators present on the floor when the vote was taken, only 55 favored cloture with 33 opposing it. On the number voting for cloture 33 were Republicans and only 22 were Democrats, while 27 Democrats opposed the cloture rule with only six Republicans voting against it.

SOUTHERN DEMS MAKE SOLID VOTE

The 22 democrats of the Southern states voted solidly against cloture including Sen. Frank Graham of North Carolina who was recently defeated in the primary in his own state on the assumption that he favored fair employment for Negroes.

Senator Graham was absent when the senate voted on the measure on May 19, as was Senator Pepper who was defeated in the primary supposedly because of his liberal views on civil rights. Senator Pepper was absent and not voting again in the second run-off last Wednesday.

In explaining his reason for voting against cloture, Senator Graham said that "The purpose of the cloture rule is to end a filibuster. There was no filibuster in progress. I therefore voted against invoking cloture in this situation."

"It is my faith and hope that something constructive can be achieved in helping bring about continuing progress in the more humane relations of all our people."

SO-CALLED LIBERALS ABSENT

The two so-called liberal republicans, Sens. Wayne Morse of Oregon and William Langer of North Dakota were both absent during the May vote, but both were present last week and voted for cloture.

punches as to why Louis would return after more than two years of retirement. This is Norris' statement:

"Louis got into his tax difficulties a couple of years ago. His auditors and counsel advised him to make certain deductions and he did. The government disallowed these deductions. So now he owes the money.

"The only way he can ever pay it and get straightened out is to fight again.

"Certain propositions the champ went into haven't turned out too well and so he hasn't the money to pay up. If the government doesn't accept his offer, then there will be no way for him to make it up."

Asked to explain Joe's offer to the government, Norris said, "He (Louis) has asked the government to accept whatever his purse would be for a Charles fight in full settlement of the government's claim. That would hold whether the purse amounted to more than what he owes or if it was less.

"The government recently has shown some leniency in tax problems to athletes and others who make their money in a short period of time and who are then placed in a very high tax bracket and can't save money," Norris added.

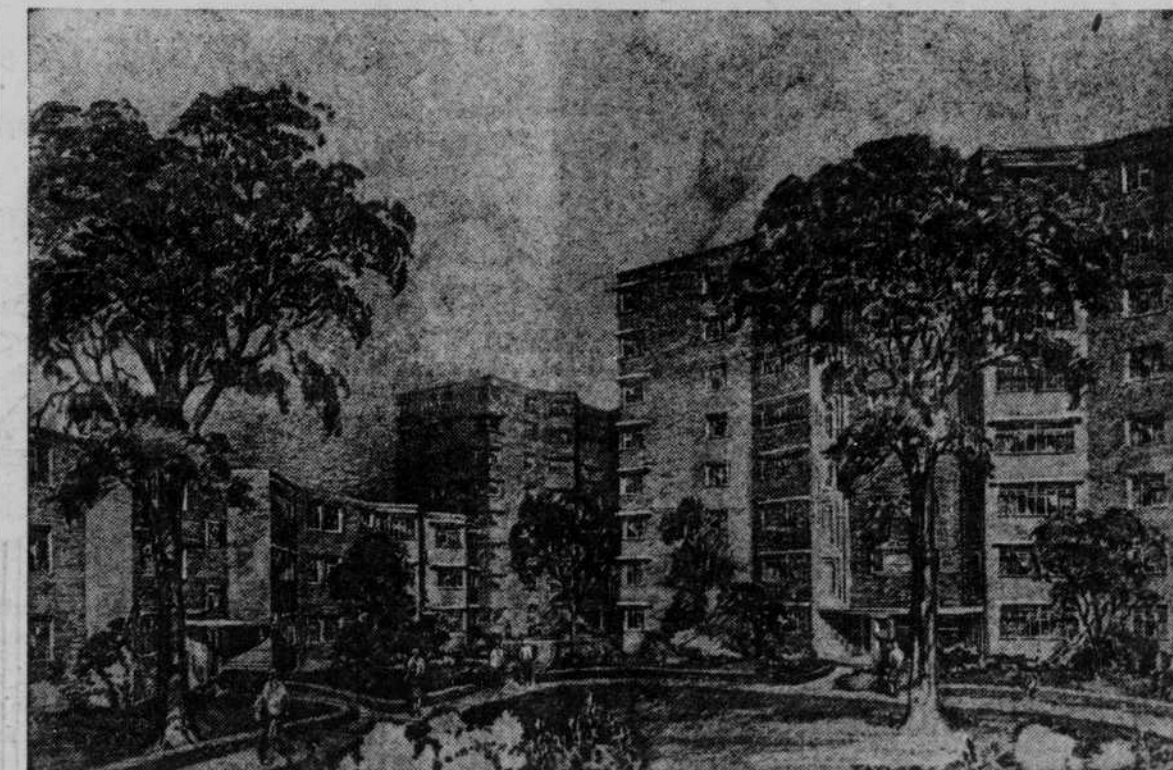

At the same time, Norris dispelled the idea that Louis owes the Internal Revenue department $58,000 in back income tax.

"It's more than that," said Norris.
