300 Comm. Effect Inter-Group Merger

CHICAGO. (ANP). Negro and white church leaders and members are beginning to gather along the north shore here at Lake Forest college where they will officially form a combined Community church, the International Association of Community Churches.

Principles in this historic merger will be the Biennial Council of Community Churches, white group headed by Dr. Roy A. Burkhardt.

SEN. JOHN ADAMS

Senator John Adams, sr., prominent Omaha attorney and presiding elder of the Omaha district of the A.M.E. church won the nomination in the primary last week for a second term as senator representing the Fifth district.

Senator Adams was the first Negro member of the Nebraska legislature since his son, John, jr., represented the Fifth district in 1936.

He introduced the F.E.P.C. bill in the last session of the senate.

Among groups supporting Senator Adams is the Omaha P.T.A.

He received his legal education at Lincoln university, Pennsylvania, and at Yale received his B.A. degree at Gammon Theological seminary in Atlanta, Ga., where he was born.

Senator Adams was admitted to practice at Columbia, S. C., and has been admitted to all courts, including the U. S. Supreme Courts, before which he has argued many cases.

Negro Student Develops New Jet Engine

BUFFALO, N. Y. (ANP). The development of a new low fuel consumption jet engine for war planes by a Negro research physicist was disclosed here last week by Dr. Joseph V. Foa, head of the propulsion branch of the Cornell Aeronautical laboratory.

The alert scientist is Joseph G. Logan, 29, a native of Washington, D. C. Logan while working at the laboratory is studying at the University of Buffalo for advanced degrees.

Logan's engine, a modification of the pulsejet engine that powered the famed German V-1 bombs of World War II, has already passed a successful test. If his engine is a success it may be utilized in rockets, jet planes, and helicopters.

Reds Cut Line Near Ichon As Tired 24th Holds On

By BRADFORD LAWS

PUSAN, South Korea. (PCNS). Mud-soaked and weary after weeks of constant Red attacks, the Twenty-fourth Infantry Regiment "Eagles" withdrew several thousand yards to another mountain range and began to merge with the right flank of the U. S. First Cavalry Division, straightening and strengthening the whole line.

An all-night Red shelling, climaxed by small arms fire at dawn, forced the limited United Nations forces withdrawals.

At this writing, the gravest threat is on the Hwanggan front, where the Second and Third North Korean divisions attacked the First Cavalry, while the First and 15th North Korean divisions continued their week-long assaults on Maj. Gen. William B. Kean's battle-proved doughboys.

The Communists sent their 15th division against the Negro infantrymen. An 800-man force from the Red 15th division went between the all-Negro 24th infantry regiment of the 25th infantry division, driving a small wedge into the line near Ichon, seven miles southwest of Hamchang.

Despite low clouds and heavy rain, several U.S. navy fighters from carriers of the United Nations "Task Force 77" got through, flying low over cloud-topped ranges to plaster the Reds with strafing and rocket attacks.

The Communists, in a desperate bid to end United Nations resistance before the arrival of American reinforcements, struck their heaviest blows against the 25th infantry division and the First Cavalry between Sangju and Hwanggan, where four red divisions totaling some 30,000 troops stabbed into American lines in the biggest battle of the war to date. Forty-five thousand Red troops lunged forward along a 200-mile fluid line, forcing U.S. withdrawals along the front.

Outnumbered four to one, both American divisions gave ground before suicidal Red assaults, but came back in a slashing, artillery-supported counterattack which broke the momentum of the Communist offensive.

Nearly 2,000 enemy troops were killed during the day by HEADS AMERICAN WOODMEN—Lawrence H. Lightner, supreme commander of the American Woodmen, directed the organization's activities at its supreme camp session in Denver, Aug. 14-17. The organization, now 49 years old, is the only Negro legal reserve fraternal life insurance association in the United States.—(ANP).

Chicago Women Supervisors for Family Court

CHICAGO. (ANP). Democracy moved up an echelon last week at the Family Court, formerly the Juvenile court, when two Negro women were upgraded to the position of supervisors. They are Mrs. Janet Avery Hamilton and Mrs. Rosetta Holland.

Judge Robert J. Dunne announced their appointment after they had passed a competitive promotional examination. In their new positions, the ladies will be in charge of regular probation officers who usually handle the cases before the court.

Mrs. Holland recently received her master's degree at Loyola university, and Mrs. Hamilton has had two years of graduate training in her field at the University of Chicago and at Loyola. The Family Court will discard its racial system of handling case loads for a geographical system.

Pittman Nominated for Omaha School Board

MRS. PITTMAN

Mrs. Elizabeth Davis Pittman was nominated for the Omaha Board of Education at the Primary Election held last week. Mrs. Pittman ran fifth among approximately 33 candidates.

Mrs. Pittman is the wife of Dr. A. B. Pittman, prominent Omaha Veterinarian, and the daughter of Attorney and Mrs. Charles F. Davis. She attended the University of Nebraska and the Creighton Law School.

She becomes the first Negro to have been so honored in the state. Mrs. Pittman waged an intelligent and vigorous campaign; her platform being, Best Schools, Best Teachers, Best Education.

Mrs. Pittman faces a prodigious task in the general election; at that time she will be in a run-off against eleven other nominees; the six obtaining the greatest number of votes will be elected.

American artillery fire alone, but hordes of Red infantrymen were fed into gaps as the communists gambled everything on an attack in force before UN strength could be augmented.

In the 24th regiment and elsewhere throughout the UN forces, American casualties were reported to be amazingly small.

AMERICAN WOODMEN'S NEW HOME OFFICE BUILDING—A pre-meeting feature of the American Woodmen's supreme camp session held in Denver, Aug. 14-17, was the dedication of their new $325,000 home office building on Sunday, Aug. 13. More than 300 delegates from 23 states and the District of Columbia attend the camp session. (ANP).
