Union Ordered To Admit Negroes To Membership

HARTFORD, Conn. (ANP) — Local 35 of the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical workers was ordered to admit Mansfield T. Tilley and Warren B. Stewart to membership in the union. The State Civil Rights commission, after a series of public hearings found that the union had fostered a pattern of discrimination against Negroes.

Pointing out that the union is powerful in Hartford and that most electrical contract work is done by union labor, the tribunal observed: "A union card thus becomes the open sesame to employment for any individual desiring to engage in the electrical trade."

The tribunal also found that since denying the applications of the pair on the grounds that they were too old for apprenticeship and were not sponsored by an employer, the union had admitted four white persons and had always given preference to relatives of members.

Tilley, 30, and Stewart, 25, applied for apprenticeship in 1949 after completing courses in electrical work in trade schools and holding electrical jobs prior to their army service.

Serving on the tribunal gave the findings were Leo Parskey of Hartford, Miss Jane Anderson of Bridgeport and Boce Barlow of Hartford.
