

Obituary

Mrs. Brevy Miller, 53, was born in Yazoo City, Miss., to Pinck Hill and Eliza Johnson Hill. Death came to Mrs. Miller September 9th, in St. Louis, Mo., where she had gone to spend an extended period with her sister, Dr. X. A. Hill Fox and brother-in-law, Rev. W. W. Fox.

It was just August 26, a few weeks earlier that a brother, Tam Hill, died suddenly in California while on one of his trips as a dining car chef cook.

Remains of Mrs. Miller were returned to Lincoln for burial. She served as Editor of the Household Hint column of the Lincoln Voice, local newspaper and was active in church circles at Newman Methodist Church.

She was employed at the U. S. Post Office for the past eleven years.

Mrs. Miller organized the Lincoln Kensington club and served as its president for three years. She was active in the Lincoln Council of Church Women, a member of the Order of Eastern Star and she attended Union College school of music for two years.

Mrs. Miller leaves her husband, John; daughter, Mrs. Leona Brown of Detroit, Michigan; sister, Dr. X. A. Hill Fox of St. Louis; two brothers, Pahio and Henry Hill.

Among distant relatives are two prominent dentists, Dr. Clayborn Hill of St. Paul, Minn., and Dr. Hill of Clarksdale, Miss. Miss Miller's two sisters gained a wide reputation for their brilliant scholarship at Nebraska University during the twenties. The late Miss Zansie Hill was the first female student to finish law at N.U. She served briefly as counselor for the Woodman of Union in Hot Springs, Ark. Overwork as a high school and college student led to a nervous breakdown and Lawyer Hill returned to her native Yazoo City for a long rest at the Afro-American hospital. Death came to the young woman at the high tide of promising career in the field of law.

The youngest sister pursued a medical course, and following the completion of her study eventually turned to practice in St. Louis. She met and married Rev. Fox of Memphis, on one of his frequent visits to Lincoln, Nebraska. The couple have one son Walter, Jr. Dr. Hill is achieving an outstanding success in medicine.

One of the brothers, Pahio M. E., is now a well known baritone singer in the east.
