OUTDOOR NEBRASKA

By
DICK H. SCHAEFFER
NEBR. GAME COMMISSION

LINCOLN, Neb.—Visualized by countless thousands but realized primarily by Nebraska's sporting populace is the state's nationally renowned pheasant season which gets under way Friday, October 26, simultaneously with the rising of the autumn sun.

Encouraged by favorable pheasant population reports, Nebraska's vast array of hunting enthusiasts will take to the field in pursuit of the attractive five-bird bag limit. Possession limit is also five birds.

Year after year, Nebraska has afforded its sportsmen with some of the finest pheasant hunting in the United States. One major contributing factor in the perennial success is the protection of the hen pheasant. For this reason conservation officers will be very strict in enforcing the protection of hens.

HUNTERS SHOULD BE EXTREMELY careful this season as the birds are late. Some cocks have not as yet fully feathered out. If you are unable to tell the sex of the bird, don't take a chance of shooting a hen. And—if a hen is unavoidable hit, do not pick it up. Leave it lay where it falls.

Nebraska's pheasant crop expects to afford productive hunting for all. The pheasant population is uniform throughout most of the open area. It will be to the hunters' benefit to disperse as much as possible especially as they are away from traditionally hunted areas in which the population may have been reduced by extremely heavy hunting pressure in the past few years.

Though the pheasant population has been found to be quite abundant, hunters should not expect to see multitudes of birds. Why? The cover throughout most of the open area is heavier than it has been in many years. Pheasants will be well protected naturally and difficult to flush. Hunters with dogs will probably experience the easiest going and the fullest bags.

There are some hail strips in the open area where the pheasant population has been hit. There are likewise some limited areas where heavy flooding has seriously damaged the pheasant population. These mentioned areas are, however, few and far between.

As the season progresses, pheasants will tend to bunch. Sexes separate; hens gather in larger groups and roosters bunch in small groups. If you flush a group of hens, you might as well move on and hunt another area. Paul Gilbert, executive secretary of the Game Commission, advises sportsmen to hunt in smaller groups of three and four men each instead of the traditional group of anywhere from 6 to 12 or more men. A small group not only decreases the danger of accidents, but also reduces the hesitancy on the part of the farmer to grant them permission to hunt on his lands.

Gilbert mentioned the following reminders which will be profitable to heed:

"Before hunting on any lands, whether posted or not, first ask permission. Hunting on privately-owned lands is a privilege, not a right.

"CARRY POSITIVE IDENTIFICATION and your hunting permit. Conservation officers have been instructed to check identification of all sportsmen contacted in the fields.

"According to the most recent State Attorney General's opinion, a shotgun is considered to be loaded when it has live cartridges or ammunition any place in the mechanism in a position from which the gun could be rendered capable of firing or discharging such ammunition. Consequently, a shotgun with shells in either the chamber or magazine is considered loaded.

Teen Age Chatter

This column is introducing Butch & Boots who will give you a little hint each week as to what the teen agers are doing in Lincoln. This column is to benefit teen-age youths who would like to see their name in "THE VOICE" so lets help Butch and Boots and tell them what you are doing.

Shirley Conrad spent the week-end in Broken Bow, Nebraska with her father, she was accompanied by her mother.

Mary Scott and Iona Adams spent the week-end in Omaha, Nebraska recently.

Sonny Walker left Monday for Fort Riley, Kansas where he will join the U.S. Army. We know a certain little girl that will be singing "I'm Waiting Just For You."

Booker Livingston, former student at the University of Nebraska has left to join the Marine Corps.

There are six girls in Lincoln High school that are members of the Y-Teens organization they are: Mary Scott, Shirley Conrad, Ida Adkins, Emma White, Shirley Cason and Norma Dunn.

A going away party was given Sunday night for Sonny Walker at the home of Clarence Zanders. Hosts besides Clarence were Skippy King, Arnold Tarpley, Clifford at second base the past season. He batted .377 in 112 games and scored 108 runs. The six-foot, 1-and-a-half-inch rookie is 25 years old and a former Toledo U. basketball star.

Mrs. Bethune Addresses Assembly at Morgan

BALTIMORE — (ANP) — Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, founder and president emerita of Bethune-Cookman college, Daytona Beach, Fla., and well-known women's leader, spoke last week at Morgan college here.

A Spingarn Medalist, and a founder and president emerita of the National Council of Negro Women, Mrs. Bethune appeared at the 11 a.m. assembly at the Morgan Christian Center, and at 2 p.m. spoke to members of the Commerce club in Holmes Hall.

She also was guest at a tea, and led a seminar discussion in the Holmes Hall auditorium.

Dunn, Wayman Williams and Ted King.

The High Life club gave a tea at the Urban League on Sunday. Say Kids, The High Life club is a club for teen-agers that meet every other Monday. They have 14 members so far and are interested in getting more members, so if you are interested contact the president, Norma Dunn on Mr. Eddie Thomas, sponsor. Other officers are Lester White, secretary and Ida Adkins, treasurer.

See you next week,
Butch & Boots.
