Sunday School Lesson

A DOUBTING AND DISOBEDIENT PEOPLE
Scripture—Exodus 32; Numbers 11-14.
Memory Selection—If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. 1 John 1:9.
Present-Day Application
By Frederick D. Jordan
Los Angeles, Calif.

Nothing is more surprising than the bad conduct, disobedience or the lack of respect often shown kind, indulgent parents by their children. The history of Israel proved that miracles do make men better. Many a wife has found to her disappointment that loving her husband and being ever patient and good to him does not make him respond in kind. The minister finds that more is required than his conscientious leadership, faithful preaching of the gospel and good music by the choir to keep his congregation from murmuring and complaining and from indifference. Despite one's best efforts men will gather themselves against you as did the Israelites against Moses and Aaron. Love in the hearts of men is first necessary. Then faith in and loyalty to God are required. Doubting, lack of courage, and fear mean failure in every circumstance. Indifference takes its toll. If you are failing God by your disobedience, by your murmuring and complaining, by your indifference—today confess your sin, he is faithful and just, and will forgive you.

DuBois Acquitted

was granted upon the latter part of the motion.
Those cleared by Judge McGuire's ruling were Dr. DuBois, prominent educator, lecturer and writer, who was the former president of the Peace Information Center; Mrs. Elizabeth Moos, educator, described as executive secretary of the organization; Abbott Simon, executive director; Kyrlie Elkin, treasurer, and Sylvia Soloff, secretary.
The trial limped along almost three weeks, during which time the government produced less than half of its scheduled 28 witnesses.

Along The Party Line

Hello everyone. Back in St. Louis again, after the wonderful visit in Lincoln.
I almost missed the doodle bug from Lincoln to Union, on account of a change in schedule after catching that same train four times in the past four months, I thought I knew when it left, but they they had moved the time up fifteen minutes and hadn't bothered to tell me.
The doodle bug is either riding smoother or I'm getting used to it. This time it went sideways only about one-third as much as forward. Of course then when you get on the streamliner you really appreciate it.
This trip wasn't nearly as Early in the case the judge ruled out any propaganda statements, or any reference of the foreign policy of the Soviet Union, any foreign policy of the United States or of any other sovereignty. He refused to permit names of any persons other than the defendants to be dragged into the case.

He further stated that he would not accept testimony pertaining to the center's appeal to any Catholic group, any Jewish group, or any other group—minority or otherwise. All references of racial or religious groups were prohibited.

The entire trial was kept on a high level with only discussions on the legal questions involved.

Besides Marcantino, other defense attorneys were Judge James Cobb, George E. C. Hayes, George A. Parker and Barrington Parker of Washington; and Gloria Agrin, Bernard Jaffe and Stanley Faulkner of New York.

colorful as the one I took to Little Rock, Arkansas with Joe I experienced several firsts that time. It was my first time to see cotton growing in the fields, being picked and taken to market. Also, it was my first trip through the beautiful Ozarks. The trees and foliage were ablaze with color for miles and miles with very few open spaces. Here and there you would see a stream tumbling down from among the trees. They are in the process of building a new highway from St. Louis to Little Rock, which it would seem is long overdue.

In Little Rock, I experienced the first segregation, with separate waiting rooms at the railroad station and also on the train back into St. Louis. And yet, in the stores and on the streets the people of both races mix freely, as well they should. It is difficult to understand the reasoning behind these practices.

Mable went to visit her daughter in Eldon, Missouri for Thanksgiving. Mary Beth, (one of the grand-daughters) had a birthday on the twentieth and so she was there in time for that too. Mable has made dresses for the 2 girls and a shirt for the boy.

The snow was all gone when I arrived in St. Louis, but we have had cloudy, rainy weather all week.

By for now,
Kathryn
