STUFFED ONIONS
... flavor, aroma, nutrition, economy in one dish!

Flavor-sweet Bermuda onions, baked to juicy perfection with luscious corn chip stuffing! It's a budget wise dish that combines all the elements that spell mealtime enjoyment.

Here is a trio of onion dishes, each using corn chips to accent the flavor of the other ingredients with the unmatched goodness of toasted corn.

"FRITOS" ONIONS

- 6 large onions
- 1/2 cup crushed "Fritos" corn chips (measured after crushing)
- 1 tsp. chopped parsley
- 2 tsp. melted butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup hot water
- 1/2 cup ground (left-over) meat

Directions: Peel onions, slice off tops, and remove centers. Boil gently for 10 minutes, drain. Mix corn chips, ground meat, and seasonings. Fill onions with mixture, place in baking dish with hot water and butter or margarine. Bake at 350 degrees basting occasionally. When nearly done sprinkle with crushed corn chips and brown.

- 2 Bermuda onions, sliced

QUESTION: I am planning to construct a masonry fireplace in my new home and would like to know whether the firebrick must be laid in cement mortar or in fire clay. If fire clay, what is the proper way of mixing it?
D.K., Uniondale, L. I., N. Y.

ANSWER: When firebrick are laid in mortar, cracks usually develop in a short while. Fire clay is better, more enduring. Mix the dry, powdered clay with water to the consistency of putty, or mortar—an easily workable mixture. Do not build a fire before 48 hours have elapsed.

QUESTION: I am unable to get paint to adhere satisfactorily to the house in which I live. I use the best quality paints, yet now it is beginning to peel again. I have been advised to use shellac by one person—an undercoat of aluminum paint by another person. Can you offer a solution to my problem?
—A.L.M., Roanoke, Va.

ANSWER: The advice you received is sound in both cases. Shellac and aluminum paint are excellent wood sealers and should cure the paint peeling problem. Be sure to remove all old and defective paint before application of either of these undercoats.

QUESTION: Can you tell me how to refinish a mirror that has spots showing through from the back which mar the clear vision? There must be some solution for this purpose.
—A.W., Reedsburg, Wisconsin

ANSWER: The only real cure is resilvering your mirror. This is a professional job requiring special equipment, including a tank large enough to contain the mirror, plus knowledge of proper chemical mixtures. Oxidation of the silvering coat causes the black spots. You can scrape the loose material away at these points, cover the area with aluminum foil held down with clear shellac, but the patchwork will show.
