Cincinnati Treats Delegate Without Bias at Union Convention

CINCINNATI, O. (ANP) — The City of Cincinnati bent over on the democracy-side to prove to colored delegates attending the 35th national convention of International Printing Pressmen's and Associate Union (AFL) recently that they were welcome to the city and all of its facilities without discrimination.

There were 1,284 delegates attending the convention. Of that number, about 10 were colored from Michigan, New York, Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Md., and Berkeley, Calif.

The colored delegates ate in the hotel dining rooms and downtown restaurants without any signs of discrimination.

They suggest before cooking, make several slight incisions in the meat and pack them with the cheese. Another hint: Smother the sizzling steak with butter pats laced with chopped chives.

Fashion Trends

look in the direction of a cute little number, and there are literally thousands of dresses from which to select.

One word of warning—be sure to wear your prettiest underpinnings if you plan trying dresses on, for their just might be as many as a hundred women sharing the oversized dressing room with you. This is another way the store cuts down on customer service and brings the prices down.

Naturally the clothes found in this type store are generally inexpensive, for that is a major appeal of this self-service system, but if one shops carefully, knows quality, and knows what lines are most becoming to her particular figure type, she can manage to look smart.

Even if one never shops in a self-service store, the principle of this type merchandising has certainly awakened us to the realization that women everywhere will do well to study their particular types with the same diligence that they would apply to the rules of the most exacting bridge game.

The time is disappearing when we can depend upon the advice of the salesgirl. To tell the truth, it was always a rather dubious method because many salesgirls are more interested in the size of the commission that will be forthcoming from the results of the sale than they are in the becomingness of the style to the purchaser. After all, how else can one account for the wearing of some fashions we occasionally see?

Undoubtedly the only reliable way to be sure that you are looking smart is to systematically study and follow-up on your type personality.

From time to time we will bring you tips on just how to go about it.

Self Service Fashions

For ANP

When "King" Cullen opened his first super market in an abandoned Long Island garage in 1930, no one dreamed that it was the beginning of new merchandising techniques which would eventually invade the fashion field.

The self-service system was an immediate success in the grocery business, and later in drug and variety stores. Housewives like the idea of shopping leisurely, comparing prices and the relatively cheaper prices in the self-service store.

After World War II Nathan Orbach got the idea that such a system should work in the fashion field as well. Since that time several other stores, some chain, have been operating with reasonable success in cities throughout the country.

Now, there are some women who just can't make up their minds, and must have the assistance and reassurance not only of the salesgirl, but of as many of her friends and relatives as she can inveigle into going shopping with her. Obviously this type of merchandising is not for her.

But for the gal who like to do her own "pinkin' and choosin'" this is tops. There are no loitering salesgirls around ready to "rush you" the women you just
