

G. Holmes Is Chairman Of Freedom Fund Drive

Appointment of George W. Holmes of Lincoln as Nebraska chairman for the 1952 Crusade for Freedom fund campaign was announced today.

Mr. Holmes will serve under the national chairmanship of Henry Ford II and the national campaign leadership of Charles E. Wilson, former president of General Electric.

Chairman of the Board of the First National Bank of Lincoln, Mr. Holmes has long been active in civic affairs. He is a past vice president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and a past director of the Omaha branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City.

Mr. Holmes declared that the Crusade, which opens November 11 and continues through December 15, will need a solid backing of contributions to carry on and expand the activities of Radio Free Europe and Radio Free Asia.

Pointing out that these stations are supported by voluntary contributions and have no connection with the government-sponsored Voice of America, Mr. Holmes said, "The growth and effectiveness of these stations have been phenomenal."

"Listeners behind the Iron Curtain are getting the truth at the rate of more than 1,000 broadcast hours per week, in seven languages in Europe, three in Asia."

Communist reaction to the hard hitting programs, he added has been bitter. Vitriolic counter blasts from Kremlin propagandists attest to their effectiveness.

Nebraskans who subscribe to the campaign will be given an opportunity to sign their names and addresses to Freedom Grams — which are messages of greeting and encouragement to the people of the communist satellite countries. Prepared in seven European languages and two Chinese dialects, they will be sent through the Iron Curtain at the end of the Crusade's fund campaign. These messages are expected to have a strong psychological effect on those who receive them, and will prove that American opposition to communism springs from the grass roots.

Explaining the need of a stepped-up campaign of truth, Mr. Holmes declared that the cost of the Crusade is a small price to pay for a cold war weapon that is priceless. Contributions are an investment in the American system of Free Enterprise and a form of insurance against World War III, he said.

Contributions may be sent to state headquarters, or to the local postmaster.

New Pastors to A.M.E. Churches in Two States

Most of the leading A.M.E. churches in Missouri and Kansas were assigned new pastors by Bishop D. Ormonde Walker at the closing session of the Southwest Missouri annual conference Sunday afternoon, Nov. 2, at the Ebenezer A.M.E. church here.

All except two of Kansas City's six largest African Methodist churches will have new ministers beginning next Sunday.

It was the biggest shift in ministers in this conference since Bishop Walker became the presiding bishop of the fifth Episcopal district four years ago.

Foust Back to Allen
Allen Chapel, "mother" A.M.E. church in Kansas City, and Gregg Tabernacle were the only large churches in the Kansas City area to retain their pastors.

The Rev. Edward S. Foust was returned to Allen with the specific instruction from the bishop to work toward relocating the church in keeping with the population shift.

The Rev. Paul Kidd was reassigned to Gregg Tabernacle, the bishop's decision bringing applause from Gregg members.

Martin to Wichita
The Rev. George F. Martin, pastor of Ebenezer and host pastor of the annual conference, was transferred to the Kansas conference and assigned to the St. Paul A.M.E. church in Wichita.

The new Ebenezer pastor is the Rev. Harry M. Davis, who was transferred to this conference from the Colorado conference where he served as presiding elder of the Rocky Mountain district. He is a former pastor of the Benton Avenue A.M.E. church at Springfield, Mo.

Council Reports

By DALE WEEKS

The Executive Committee of the Lincoln Council on Human Relations wishes to take this opportunity to express its appreciation to all those who participated in the meeting on Negro housing held at the Chamber of Commerce Thursday, October 23. We are all aware that attitudes based on emotions and a lack of knowledge contribute greatly to this problem. This meeting was a valuable step in the direction of overcoming these difficulties.

We wish to state our wholehearted agreement with Mr. DeHart Hubbard, race relations adviser of the FHA, that any steps toward meeting the housing needs of Lincoln Negroes be carried out on a non-segregated basis. Experience in other communities has shown that a relatively large increase in a racial or national origin group can be absorbed with a minimum of friction when the group is scattered throughout the city. Frictions tend to arise when such groups become concentrated in a single area.

The Committee especially wishes to thank Mr. George Randol for his efforts as a realtor toward improving housing conditions for Negroes. We wish to thank the homebuilders and financing agencies for their assurance that their facilities are equally available to all regardless of race. We also wish to thank Mayor Victor Anderson for the offer of his personal financial assistance in building rental units and for the promised co-operation of the City of Lincoln to meet the housing needs of the Negro in Lincoln.

We shall be most happy to cooperate with all sincere attempts to solve this problem.

Dear Friends:

We are highly appreciative of the honor and privilege of coming to you as publishers of The Voice.

We pay tribute to the Shakespeares, to a faithful service of six years, and to a publication, outstanding in its class. We are sorry that Lincoln will lose their services, but we are nevertheless, thankful for the example and inspiration they leave for us.

With your continued co-operation, we shall strive to not only maintain, but to build the kind of publication, needed to serve the age in which we live.

Eisenhower The Man of The Hour

The hope of peace in Korea, as well as the demand for a change in Washington, helped make the great Eisenhower landslide Tuesday. Ike's dramatic pledge to go to Korea if elected swelled great expectations in the hearts of millions of Americans. This was a promise of action from a man with a reputation for action.

True to that promise, Ike intends to go to Korea after a short rest. President Truman has offered to turn over the presidential plane, The Independence, for the trip, thus making the journey official business. However, from previous statements made by Mr. Truman, he's still not convinced that the best man won. We're hoping for cooperation between Mr. Truman and the President-elect, in order that the needs of our Government might be better met.

The nation will pray for Ike's safety. Only the hope that some how his personal appearance in Korea could influence the deadlocked truce negotiations and start them back on the road to an honorable peace would justify the ever-present hazards of any long journey. Let us not build those hopes too high. General Eisenhower himself has said: "I would not be honest if I led you to believe that there is an easy way to peace. There is none. There is no painless political shortcut; no glib solution."

This is true of the war in Korea as well as the Cold war that spreads around the world.

While every American wants to end the Korean war and bring our boys home, there can be no appeasement of Communist there. Ike certainly did not intend that his promise to go to Korea should convey the impression to the Kremlin that he is willing to settle at any price.

Although he has criticized the decisions of the Truman Administration that allowed the Communists to believe we would not defend Korea, he has said that the decision to send in our troops when the aggressor did strike was justified and necessary.

General Eisenhower has said again and again that the Reds respect only strength. If the Kremlin understands that the overwhelming victory for the General represents a solid public opinion believed standing up to Communism and does not mean a desire to weaken our program of collective security with the other free Nations, then perhaps there will be a change in the Red's attitude at the Korean conference table.

President-elect Eisenhower can make that clear with dramatic impact—not only to the Kremlin but also to our friends in Asia—by his trip. Such a psychological effect would justify the journey.

Until the General has made the trip, the American people should adopt a "wait and see" attitude before passing judgment or get impatient for results. After all it took twenty years for a change to occur, so let's give our President-elect every ounce of cooperation so that he will be more confident in making vital and critical decisions.
