Faith in Your Future

This writer has noticed the attitude of the working group of people among both white and Negroes since Wednesday morning, the day after election.

These people are convinced that no less than the bread line and utter starvation face them.

The scare campaign has really paid off to — thank heaven — a small group of Americans. However, I refuse to lose faith in America because of any party being in power. If we all are on our way to the poorhouse, then someone will get rich building a large enough parking lot to make space for the new cars that will be there next to it.

Americans, let's all wake up and enjoy everything that we have to live for, and thank your Lucky Stars that you have a Country with men in it like General Eisenhower and Governor Stevenson with whom to make the selection for the President of these United States.

Let's face facts. Maybe some "goldbickers" that have been sitting back and letting the other fellow do his job will be laid off or given real honest to goodness work to do for a change will become resentful, but are we going to let the small group percentage drag us down?

There was a time when a person receiving aid from the State would slip and try to keep from being seen receiving such benefits, but now they're proud to be among the so called smart ones, getting something for nothing.

Fellow Americans let's not step into this shameful condition of expecting support from the rest of the world.

We, the Negro, have made great progress, not because of any political party, but because we are better equipped to hold better jobs, and we are still going forward. Not through Civil Rights, but through good hard work which has never hurt anyone. Stick to your guns not as a Negro but as an American citizen and no one can take that from you. True, we have never had it so good, but you can't just save America for any one group and lose it for the millions of other Americans.

Let's save America for America. Good citizens walk, work and act proudly. We are all endowed with that which no one can take away.

Illness, Low Grades Force Penn To Drop Bob Evans, Team Captain

PHILADELPHIA (ANP)—A combination of an undisclosed illness and lower than usual grades combined Friday to have Bob Evans declared ineligible for the University of Pennsylvania football team.

A great tackle of all-American caliber, Evans was captain of the team. He and end Ed Bell are the first two Negroes ever to play for the Penn eleven.

Evans has been admitted to the university hospital for "a rest and complete physical checkup." Just what is causing Evans' sickness was not revealed, but it is said that Evans kept it secret.

William H. DuBarry, executive vice president of Penn, made this announcement:

"Upon inquiry by the university into the situation of Robert Evans' unsatisfactory scholastic record in recent weeks, it was discovered that he had not been well and had kept the information to himself because of his extreme desire to lead the football team as captain."

Evans is 21 years old and usually a good student. On the gridiron he has been a virtual 60-minute man in this day of the two-platoon systems. His inspirational work has led his team to a surprisingly successful season with only one loss on its record.

Nebraska's Senators (10)

Monroe L. Hayward, elected to the United States Senate by the legislature on March 8, 1899, died December 1, 1899, before he had qualified. Though cut off just as he was about to climax his career, Senator Hayward, who came to Nebraska the year the state was admitted to the union, was closely identified with the developing years of the new state.

He was born in Willsboro, New York, December 22, 1840. He spent his boyhood on his father's farm, securing his education in the community's common schools with an occasional term at private schools. In common with many other young Americans, he enlisted for duty in the Civil War. He saw active service in the Shenandoah Valley and so undermined his health that he had to be discharged from the Army because of disability.

Upon his return from the wars, young Monroe Hayward — again in the pattern of many of his ambitious contemporaries—struggled to complete his education. He worked his way through Ft. Edward Institute by teaching school, serving as a bookkeeper, and doing manual labor. Upon graduation, he read law, completing his legal studies at Whitewater, Wis. He was admitted to the bar in 1867, and then came out to the new state of Nebraska.

Young Hayward settled permanently at Nebraska City. For many years he was a member of that community's board of education, and in 1877 he served as a delegate to the state constitutional convention. He was active in the affairs of the Republican party and served several times as chairman of its state conventions.

In 1898 he won the Republican nomination for governor. He campaigned actively, speaking in almost every organized county in the state, but went down to defeat at the hands of W. A. Poynter, fusionist candidate.

Though the fusionists won the extensive European tour.

Roland Hayes, well known tenor, will appear in the final concert. The last appearance of Mr. Hayes in this city was at Ryman auditorium during the inauguration of Fisk's president.

Experiment at Boys Town

BOYS TOWN, NEBR.—Hope for the prevention of acute gingivitis comes from Father Flanagan's Boys Home here, where 589 volunteer youngsters have just finished the first scientific group study of its kind in the history of oral hygiene. The dramatic experiment was co-sponsored by Lever Brothers Chlorodont toothpaste and the Rystan company, licensors of chlorophyll. Full results will be published in the national publication of the American Academy of Periodontology, for the benefit of all mankind.

Commenting on the project, Msgr. Nicholas H. Wegner, director of Boys Town, said "There is a basic generosity in youth, and they cross the bridge between childhood and adulthood by giving to their environment instead of taking from it."

The boys taking part were aware of the importance of the study and eagerly swept aside their proverbial boys' dislike for tooth brushing. They enthusiastically brushed their teeth for two minutes morning and night for nine months. Examination showed that of the 201 using Chlorodont, 78.6% showed advanced improvement within two months.

governorship and other state offices, they lost the legislature. The Republican majority in legislature was badly divided, and it took two months of acrimonious debate for them to unite on a successor to Populist Senator William V. Allen. They finally agreed on Mr. Hayward. When he died before qualifying, Governor Poynter appointed Senator Allen to serve until the legislature could select a successor to Senator Hayward. Senator Hayward's son, Col. William Hayward, also achieved great renown, and among other things is famous as the first man in Nebraska to own a "horseless carriage." His grandson, Leland Hayward, is one of America's most famous theatrical producers.
