'Twelve Events of 1952'

CHICAGO—The twelve events of 1952 which, in the opinion of the editors of the American Peoples Encyclopedia, will be "most wanted" in future years by reference schools and students of history, were selected today for inclusion as a permanent record in the 1953 edition of the encyclopedia's yearbook. The editors also named the outstanding personalities of 1952.

Three names in the list of personalities, it was noted, have held places of outstanding importance in world events for two years in a row. These are Dwight D. Eisenhower, Queen Elizabeth II and Eva Peron.

The twelve outstanding personalities of 1952, not listed in any specific order by the encyclopedia editors, are:

PRESIDENT-ELECT EISENHOWER who resigned the command of the NATO forces in Europe to come home and win the Republican nomination for President and go on to an overwhelming victory at the polls in November. (In 1951 he was nominated an outstanding personality for his work in developing the NATO forces and for being "one of the main political questions" of the year.)

ADLAI STEVENSON for his steadfast reluctance to become a candidate for President, for his dramatic nomination at the Democratic convention, and for his idealistic and sophisticated political campaign.

QUEEN ELIZABETH II who succeeded to the throne of Britain upon the death of her father, George VI. (Last year, as Princess Elizabeth, she visited Canada and was named an outstanding personality for being the principal performer in one of the most exciting news events of the year.)

EX-KING FAROUK, the fat monarch of Egypt who toppled from his throne and bounced out of the country, presumably for good, leaving behind an absorbing story of kingly goings-on in the royal Egyptian palace.

SEN. ROBERT A. TAFT for being "Mr. Republican" from start to finish.

PRESIDENT HARRY S. TRUMAN for his unconstitutional behavior in the steel strike and for muddying up the presidential campaign.

SEN. JOSEPH M'CARTHY for being the most talked about man in the U.S. congress and the most popular politician in Wisconsin.

EVA PERON for the sensational effect her death had upon a whole country and the worldwide headlines it made. (In 1951, she was named an outstanding personality for playing "a stellar role in the world's best political performance.")

RICHARD M. NIXON for being the first vice presidential candidate of recent memory to make his own thunder and for new records in messages transmitted on a single occasion.

GEN. MATTHEW B. RIDGWAY who moved into Eisenhower's tent as commander of the NATO forces in Europe.

CAPT. KURT CARLSON for inspiring a saga of the sea—one of the greatest in newspaper history.

MARILYN MONROE for keeping in such good shape all year.

The twelve outstanding news stories were selected with the future in mind according to Franklin J. Meine, editor of the American Peoples Encyclopedia. They will in all probability be vital reference material for educators, researchers and students in years to come.

'Just A Little Stiff'

Eddie Thomas, who makes his home in Lincoln but works in Nebraska City as an engineer's aide with the U.S. Army Engineers Corp. had an unusual experience over the week end. Eddie, as is his custom, spends the week ends here with his wife, but missed all transportation connections during the past week end. As a last resort, he started a hitchhiking effort toward Lincoln.

He reports that he walked to the Weeping Water turn on Highway 34 without getting a "nibble" of a ride. He said that it seemed to be getting darker and colder every moment and at this point he was really "weeping water." He called his wife from the filling station at the Weeping Water turn. Mrs. Thomas enlisted the aid of a friend and together they started out to pick up Mr. Thomas.

When the contact was made Mr. Thomas had walked four miles west of his calling point. He was at church Sunday morning but arrived too late to take his usual place in the Quinn Chapel AME choir.

Eddie, a senior engineering student who will return to school the second semester, said: "I am just a little stiff."
