Your Sports Round-up

By James Sawyer
Jersey Joe Walcott recently commented that he has every intention of fighting heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano for the title. New York State Athletic Commissioner, Robert Christenberry, told a sports writer recently that he doubted if Walcott would fight again. "Rules of the New York Commission and almost every other state say that a fighter cannot be licensed after he is 39." According to Jersey Joe, he will be 39 January 31st, and he should know.

This writer has never been in love with Joe Walcott, but I am willing to go all out to back him in his fight against Christenberry and the N.Y. Boxing Commission. Joe is not a colorful fighter, but he has always given his best, and, after all, what more can anyone ask?

The fact that Joe refuses to fight as long as his manager is ill, is truly the American way of doing things. As long as one recognizes his friends and sticks by them when they are needed, he is a person to be admired. Walcott is not letting dollars come before integrity.

Christenberry has been blowing off long enough, and it is time that someone stops him before he completely ruins a good, clean, American sport.

Walcott deserves everything that he can get out of boxing because he has put a lot into it.

Now that the football season is over, the Stars of the year have been picked as well as the Managers of the Year, and all other merits cited.

However, we have completely overlooked the most important man of the game—THE TRAINER. Without the Trainer, no team is better than its physical condition. So let's give a salute of honor to the forgotten man of sports: THE TRAINER.

Campus Corner

By Stella Woodlee
This week I would like to bring attention to the campus of Union College, a Seventh Day Adventist supported school. About seven hundred fifty students are enrolled, twenty of them colored. Talent is outstanding at Union, which you will see by the following introductions.

Miss Jean Robbins hails from Buffalo, New York. Jean is a polished young lady with particular artistry as a concert pianist. She was invited to appear with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, one of the leading symphonies in the United States, as soloist.

Miss Sylvia Deal, a coloratura soprano with a range of three and one-half octaves appeared in September in a joint recital with Sam Deshay, also a Union student. Sylvia, former Howard University student, was accompanied by Mr. Deshay in the Ohio recital. Mr. Deshay has a working repertory at the keyboard which includes Mendelssohn's Rondo Capriccioso, Revolutionary Etude Lucia di Lammermoor which is a solo played by the left hand alone.

Mr. Herbert Harris and Miss Jean Robbins are advanced students at the organ, taking further instruction at Union College.

Many of you Lincolmites are familiar with the talented Hub Of Harmony men's quartet which features the old and beautiful Negro spirituals and other outstanding arrangements of sacred songs. The membership includes Leroy Bookhardt, Sam Deshay, Milton Woodson and Raymond Davis. Arthur Lee Hobby has also appeared with the group. The quartet has been featured at the Hovland-Swanson open house and at a special program given by the men's organization of Quinn Chapel.

There is a veritable treasure chest of talent at Union College now and an assuredly bright future for these students later.

Short In Sports

Ted King, who is known chiefly for his football ability, has developed into a mainstay with the Lincoln High basketball team. King had a big fight against Northeast last Saturday night. He led the Links with 15 points but Northeast downed their city rivals by a 43-41 score.

Ike Jackson, ace receiver for the Kansas City Monarchs for the past three years, has been sold to the Denver Bears. Is that the reason why Denver could sell Walt Novick to Lincoln? Novick went to the Bears late last season and aided them in their pennant-winning fight.

The death of Fritz Davis in that plane crash saddened many sports lovers in Lincoln. Fritz had been a great athlete at Northeast and had been a three sports letter winner at the United States Naval Academy.

Your Are the Detective

Upon arriving at the beautiful country home of "play boy" Tommy Webster, you are conducted immediately to the spot where the tragedy took place. In a remote part of the garden lies the body of the beautiful chorus girl, Rita Colton, a huge blood-stained hunting knife lying on the ground nearby. The girl is clad in a beautifully tailored beach coat, and when you unfasten this and pull it apart you find she is wearing an attractive two-piece bathing suit and you note that the blood is congealing on an angry-looking knife wound in her chest.

Tommy Webster, who has been hovering anxiously in the background, begins his story: "As you probably know, Rita and I have been going together for some time. This afternoon I brought her of Newt Joseph, former third baseman for the Kansas City Monarchs. Newt was only 53. He had played with some of the great names in Monarch history and was considered one of the team's great third sackers. Since his baseball retirement, he had operated a taxi company in Kansas City.

Charles Bryant, whose chances with the Cornhusker football team have been enhanced by the discarding of the platoon system, has won three matches in the 167 pound class with the University wrestling team.

Joe Black received his award as the SPORTING NEWS National League Rookie of the Year at a luncheon at Harlem's Hotel Theresa.

from town for a swim. We were in the pool alone when I was called to the house to answer a telephone call. When I returned to the pool she had disappeared. I walked around the place looking for her, and then as I came through the garden, I found... this! Who would have wanted to murder poor Rita? It's horrible!"

"I thought I saw recently in the papers that you and Rita had parted company," you say.

"Oh, you know how people make mountains out of mole hills. Rita and I had a mild little argument one night in one of the clubs, and everyone immediately thought everything was off between us. But we were really going to announce our engagement shortly."

"Did you touch the body after discovering it?"

"No... I couldn't. I could see that she was dead. So I hurried to the house and called you."

"If you were swimming with Rita, why aren't you wearing a bathing suit?" you ask.

"Oh, I changed right after phoning you. I don't like wearing a wet bathing suit very long."

"Well," you then state, "I'm glad you did change to dry clothes. Because you're coming along with me for further questioning."

What has aroused your suspicions?

SOLUTION

You were compelled to unfasten and pull apart Rita's beach coat in order to see the knife wound. Yet, surely the knife would have pierced or torn the beach coat and the fresh blood would have stained it.
