And That's A Fact

"A honeymoon is not a necessity," rules a judge. Pipe down, judge; Uncle Sam might hear you and slap a luxury tax on honeymoons.

Today's couplet: "Man wants but little here below"—and what that is he doesn't know.

Observations

Quadrifocal glasses are now available. It is said they enable a person to stand in the middle of the week and look both ways for Sunday.

These days a high town is one that has everything the city has except traffic jams.

We admire a polar bear in that although he often takes a cold bath, he never brags about it.

You Are the Detective

The beautiful young secretary, Betty Martin, has been murdered, shot through the head. After checking carefully through her background, you learn that she had recently been lured into a group of notorious society crooks. The idea of traveling in such fast company had at last appealed to the thrill-seeking girl, but lately she had been regretting her association and had threatened to quit. One of the gang, fearful that Betty would expose them, had shot her.

With the help of the police, you succeed in apprehending the five members of the gang—Margaret Simpson, Alice Frater, Sam Coleman, Bert Thompson and Dave Winters—and then you study the information you have managed to collect on them.

One of these persons is highly skilled at cards and has made lots of money by enticing certain society people into poker games. Bert Thompson was formerly a bookmaker, and had recently tried to persuade the card shark to go into a gambling business with him, but the card player had declined because he didn't like Thompson and didn't trust him. Although Dave Winters and the card shark disliked each other, they worked together very smoothly in all activities of the gang. Margaret Simpson had been heard to remark that one of the members of the gang had shot Betty Martin, not only because she knew too much, but also because of jealousy. Margaret Simpson also was heard to say that the card shark, enamored of Betty, had pleaded with the murderer, who was a very good friend, not to shoot the secretary.

Now, with this information before you, can you put your finger on the actual murderer?

SOLUTION

You can see that the card shark is not Bert Thompson nor Dave Winters—and, therefore, he is Sam Coleman. You also know that Margaret Simpson is not the killer, and since the card shark (Sam Coleman) had begged the murderer who was a very close friend of his, then the murderer could not have been Thompson or Winters, but must have been Alice Grater.

Your Sports Round-up

Tom Carodine is reported to have been signed by the Cleveland Browns. The former mayor of Boys Town brief college career was here at the University of Nebraska. Tom was an outstanding performer for the San Diego Marines during the past season. Carodine, providing he gets a discharge, may be the "sleeper" among the coming season's professional rookies.

Fifteen Negro stars were selected in the National Football League's annual draft of college players. The Chicago Bears led with four. Among those selected by the Bears was William Anderson, adopted son of comedian Eddie (R. Chester) Anderson.

Weiland Tarpley won the bantamweight title in the Regional Golden Gloves meet at the Fairgrounds last Saturday night. Tarpley scored a first round TKO over Kenneth McKubbin of Beatrice.

Veryl Switzer, Kansas State's star football and track performer, was defeated here in his broad jump specialty Saturday evening. Nebraska's Glenn Beerline came up with a surprising leap of 23 feet 3 1/2 inches. The Wildcats' star could only get 23 feet 1 1/4 inches. Switzer tied for second in the pole vault.

In the dual meet, Nebraska's Bob Fairchild finished third in the 60-yard dash. Thane Baker, Big Seven sprint champion and Olympic star, was the event winner. It was in a race against Baker last year that Fairchild suffered a leg injury that put him on the shelf for the remainder of the season.
