Skip Palrang, the popular coach of the Cowboys from Boystown is very proud of his team after they defeated North Platte for the State Crown. A crowd of some 10,000 fans packed the University of Nebraska Coliseum to witness the hectic game. Both teams played headsup in the first quarter with the score standing Boys Town 14 North Platte 10. In the second quarter saw North Platte pulling within 4 points of Boys Town at 20-16 but Boys Town exploded for 8 points on baskets by Phillips, Jones, and Cook. That left the score 28-18 at the half. In the second half of the game George Stuehm made a setup to bring the score to 30 to 25. Boys Town seemed to get hot after Stuehms setup, because they threw in 14 points while North Platte made only 3. This spurt was led by Phillips, Jones, and Wiedel and the third period ended with the score standing at 44-30. In the last quarter Boys Town was led by Deacon Jones, Cook, and Wiedel, the score was 60 to 39 at the end of game. The outstanding player of the game was Dick Phillips who got 26 points. Wiedel and Jones got 12 points, Cook got 8 and Medlock got 2. For North Platte Mutzbaugh got 10 points and Madison got 9.

The Finest Thing

A man serving over seas in the war area of Korea was asked what could be done for the fighting men in the way of gifts. He replied in no uncertain terms that "the finest thing to be done is the maintenance of a politically and economically sound home front." He said further that, "With a reasonable degree of integrity on the part of most people, that will be brought about."

To do the things necessary to assure men on the war fronts that there will be such an America to return to is not too much to demand of every American on the home front.

You Are the Detective

"I just can't realize that my wife is really dead!" sobs the middle-aged little man who opens the door for you. "And just because of carelessness, too!"

He leads you into the kitchen where a plump little gray-haired woman lies sprawled on the floor next to the table. A faint odor of game permeates the atmosphere. You look over at the stove and notice the empty aluminum saucepan on the right-front burner.

"I shut off the gas and threw open and the windows and door as soon as I found her," exclaims the bereaved husband, Sam Perry, "but it was too late! If only I had gotten home earlier!"

"Suppose you tell me your version of the whole story," you prompt the man.

"Well, Sally hadn't been feeling real well here of late. She couldn't seem to get any sleep at night, and because of that she was kind of in a fog during the daytime—tended to doze quite a bit. She used to drink lots of coffee during the day to keep herself awake, so she could get some of her work done. She always boiled the water first—one of her pet ideas. I think she lit the gas under that saucepan full of water there on the stove, then set down at the table here and dozed off. The water boiled over and put out the flame, and that was it! The gas snuffed out her life!"

"Have you touched anything in here since this happened?"

"No, nothing at all, except to shut off the gas and open the window."

"Did your wife have any insurance?"

"Oh yes. And it carries a double-indemnity clause, too, which means I'll get twice the amount because of this accidental death. You'll verify that this was an accidental death, won't you?"

"Not until I can prove that this was an accident, and not murder!" you state.

What clues has aroused your suspicions?

SOLUTION

Sam Perry was too anxious to impress you with the "accidental death" theory and collect double indemnity. You have noted that the saucepan on the stove is empty. There should have been some water still in it. A pot cannot boil over, extinguish the gas flame under it and still leave enough heat in the stove to evaporate all the water remaining in the pot.

FREE BATH—It's sometimes a good idea to watch what the other fellow is doing, or so one Blair citizen decided—too late. Armed with plungers, he and another man went to work one day on a clogged V-pipe that drained a double sink. Thinking his side was clear, one man bent over to take a closer look. For the reward he received a faceful of dirty dish water. His partner had pulled out his plunger on the other side.
