

MR. WEBSTER DAVIS' BOOK

THIS work is the outcome of a visit to the Transvaal, made by Mr. Webster Davis while he was Assistant Secretary of the Interior, under Mr. McKinley's first administration, and as the result of which he broke his relations with the Republican party and affiliated himself with the opposition. The author vehemently arraigns the British government for the Transvaal war. Whether the reader agrees with the author or not, he will be interested in his presentation of the Boer side of the case. Milton said that truth could not suffer so long as she was left free to combat error.

John Bull's Crime, —OR— Assaults on Republics

"Strike, but hear," is a familiar saying. No one knows his own side of the case until he also knows the other side.

For all these reasons, no matter what opinion the reader may have formed of the South African war, he will be the gainer from a reading of this book.

The illustrations are worth alone more than the price of the work. They were all taken on the spot, either by Mr. Davis or by some of his friends, and they certainly form a unique collection of South African pictures. They are in all styles, from "grave to gay, from lively to severe," and they have been faithfully and exquisitely reproduced in half-tone. Cloth, large octavo (6x9), 400 pages altogether, printed on coated paper, beautifully illustrated by over eighty full-page half-tones, attractively bound. Two dollars; carriage prepaid.

I receive numerous inquiries from persons who desire to secure Jefferson's works and since the publication of the Jeffersonian Cyclopaedia I have taken pleasure in recommending it. I find it of great value and would not be without it.
