

I Will Cure You of Rheumatism.

No pay until you know it.

After 2,000 experiments, I have learned how to cure Rheumatism. Not to turn bony joints into flesh again; that is impossible. But I can cure the disease always, at any stage, and forever.

I ask for no money. Simply write me a postal and I will send you an order on your nearest druggist for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure, for every druggist keeps it. Use it for a month, and if it does what I claim pay your druggist $5.50 for it. If it doesn't I will pay him myself.

I have no samples. Any medicine that can affect Rheumatism with but a few doses must be drugged to the verge of danger. I use no such drugs. It is folly to take them. You must get the disease out of the blood.

My remedy does that, even in the most difficult, obstinate cases. No matter how impossible this seems to you, I know it and I take the risk. I have cured tens of thousands of cases in this way, and my records show that 39 out of 40 who get those six bottles pay, and pay gladly. I have learned that people in general are honest with a physician who cures them. That is all I ask. If I fail I don't expect a penny from you.

Simply write me a postal card or letter. Let me send you an order for the medicine. Take it for a month, for it won't harm you anyway. If it cures, pay $5.50. I leave that entirely to you. I will mail you a book that tells how I do it. Address Dr. Shoop, box 515, Racine, Wis.

Hear Them Howl.

The plutocratic press has engaged in a new performance during the last two or three weeks. It may be called a new repetition of the "Baby Act." It weeps over the degeneracy of the press, meaning that portion that has been assaulting the "greed and glory" ideas of the millionaires. Do these gentlemen remember so long ago as 1896? If anything in all the history of the world ever equalled the bitterness and vituperation that they employed at that time the historians have failed to record it. Men with world-wide reputations as educators and scholars, bankers of unsullied reputation, business men against whom a word of scandal had never before been uttered, were pursued as if they were wild beasts of the jungle. Their private characters were assailed, their fortunes were wrecked and in one or two instances they were hurried until they sank into early graves. Why? Because they took a position on a strictly scientific question that plutocracy thought was inimical to its interests.

The men who engaged in that are now talking like saints from heaven of the vituperation of the Hearst papers! Never at any time has there been an article in those papers—or a cartoon for that matter—that approached in quality of the gall of bitterness, that these editors poured out upon the head of every prominent man whom they thought was opposed to the interests of the grabbers who could gather to themselves all the increased products of labor that has accrued from scientific discoveries and the inventions of the nineteenth century. Bryan was often cartooned as a snake—a viper that had been warmed to life in the bosom of society—and now sought to sting to death his benefactor.

After having made a record of villainess that was never equalled—Lauterbach, one of the chief managers of the republican campaign, declared that if Bryan were elected he would never take his seat—they now set up a whine about attacks upon public men. The opposition press has been a model of courtesy when compared with the hypocrites who set up a howl about Hearst's papers. The subsidized editors have been hit where it hurts. Not half of them could run their papers for a week if they had to rely upon the public for support. Let them still continue to "hyphenate" and draw upon the republican campaign fund to meet expenses, yes, and let them continue to howl. That is all that they are able to do. Not one of them can write a half column article on any economic tention of a thinking man.—Nebraska Independent.

As Others See Us.

In a paper published in the south of France is found an amusing account of the early life and exploits of William J. Bryan. The story, it appears, was written by the Paris correspondent of the provincial paper, and is based, so the writer avers, on information furnished by friends of the candidate who have been prominent at the French capital.

The western wag who filled the Frenchman so full of new and startling information must have smiled to himself as he read in cold print the statement that "M. le Col. Bryan first came into fame as one of the strange, half-savage bands of cowboys who roamed over the far west fighting the Indians and wild beasts. Imitating perhaps, the custom of the Indian chiefs, each of the cowboys bore a nickname based on some of his exploits as a hunter or fighter. Thus M. le Col. Bryan's title among his rough but brave and sturdy comrades was Silver Bill and Dead Shot. After the treaty of peace was signed with the Indians at Chicago in 1896 Col. Bryan went out of the cattle business and became one of the bonanza farmers of the west. He can now sit on his back stoop, as the rear veranda is called in America, and look over his fields of corn stretching farther than eye can reach in every direction. As a result of his early training on the plains, where he spent months at a time without an opportunity of talking to another human being, the candidate for president (the article was published in the 1900 campaign) is extremely taciturn and can hardly be persuaded to express an opinion on the issues of campaign. He is the author of a book of adventure called "The First Battle," in which some of his encounters with the Indians of the Tammany and other tribes are described at length.

"In the effort to partially neutralize the strength of M. le Colonel among the cowboys and Indians who make up the largest part of the voting population west of the Alleghany mountains, the republicans have nominated M. le Roosevelt for vice president. M. le Roosevelt is one of the leading cowboys in America, and is especially famous for once having vanquished a grizzly bear in a single combat. During the present campaign M. le Col. Roosevelt has ridden a series of horses all over the country, giving exhibitions of rough riding such as were seen in Paris a year ago under the direction of another American statesman."—Exchange.

DOUBTERS.

Can be Changed by Knowledge.

If there is any doubt about making brain power by the use of certain food, the doubter should make the following experiment.

Helen Frances Huntington of Gainesville, Ga., says: "Just a word of commendation concerning Grape-Nuts which I have found to be the most wholesome, nourishing and appetizing food that has ever come to my knowledge."

I am not a dyspeptic, but being constantly engaged in severe brain work I found that I did not thrive on ordinary diet; even a moderate dinner dulled my brain so as to be practically incapable of critical work. I tried meat-juice, peptonoids, the two meal system of light breakfast and no supper which brought on nervous depletion and sleeplessness, so I resorted to one and another of the various health-foods which all seemed alike tasteless and valueless as a brain food, until quite by chance, I had a dish of Grape-Nuts food served as a dessert. I liked it so well that I began to use it daily, for supper four teaspoonfuls in a saucer of hot milk, eaten before it dissolves to mushiness.

This point should be remembered as, after a certain time, evaporation seems to affect the sweet nutty flavor of the food as in the case of certain fine-flavored fruits.

The result in my case was simply astonishing. I had no desire whatever for sweet pastries, meats, or in fact anything else; and my brain was clear and active at night as on awaking from a long, refreshing sleep.

The peculiar advantage about Grape-Nuts food is that it supplies the nutritive qualities of a varied diet without the bad results of heavy eating. I cheerfully recommend its use to all brain workers, if not as an exclusive diet, certainly for the last meal of the day. I always take it with me when traveling, which saves a deal of annoyance and discomfort."
