statements as the one published in the World indicate an egotism that makes him indifferent to the truth, an ignorance that makes him incapable of understanding the truth, or a moral obtuseness that makes him ignore the truth.

"The history of the last ten years cannot be blotted out by his pompous and self-laudatory pronouncements. He secured his election in 1892 by practicing a wilful deception upon the public. While in the campaign the tariff question was the paramount issue, his committee secured and expended the largest campaign fund that the democratic party ever had and the fund was secured by the promise of legislation that could not have been discussed in advance of the election without defeating him.

"To carry out his bargain with Wall street he made the White house the rendezvous of syndicates and exploiters and administered the treasury department in a manner that makes the record of the unjust steward of Bible fame seem parsimonious by comparison.

"His record as president was such a stench in the nostrils of his party that even with the patronage of that great office and with the aid of the money magnates whose treasuries he enriched he could not secure an endorsement from the convention. In the campaign following, when democracy was engaged in a gigantic struggle with plutocracy, he formed the salaried officers whom he could coerce into a bar of Hessians and attacked the rear of the democratic party while the republicans waged war from the front.

"When the election was over he was the chief figure at a high-priced

Bright's Disease and Diabetes Cured.

University Chemist Acting as Judge

Irvine K. Mott, M. D., of Cincinnati, O., demonstrated before the editorial board of the Evening Post, one of the leading daily papers of Cincinnati, the power of his remedy to cure the worst forms of kidney diseases. Later a public test was instituted under the auspices of the Post, and five cases of Bright's Disease and Diabetes were selected by them and placed under Dr. Mott's care. In three months' time all were pronounced cured, one of the most prominent Universities in the United States having been chosen by the Post to make examination of the cases before and after treatment.

Any one desiring to read the details of this public test can obtain copies of the papers by writing to Dr. Mott for them. This public demonstration gave Dr. Mott an international reputation that has brought him into correspondence with people all over the world, and several noted Europeans are numbered among those who have taken his treatment and been cured.

The doctor will correspond with those who are suffering with Bright's Disease, Diabetes or any kidney trouble, either in the first, intermediate or last stages, and will be pleased to give his expert opinion free to those who will send him a description of their symptoms. An essay which the Doctor has prepared about kidney troubles and describing his new method of treatment will also be mailed by him. Correspondence for this purpose should be addressed to IRVINE K. MOTT, M. D., 89 Mitchell Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

banquet and gloated over the defeat of the party that raised him from obscurity to fame. Since that time he has lost no opportunity to stand in sight of the public, beat his breast and proclaim his political superiority.

"He has done more business on less capital than any man who has ever occupied so high an office. If his democracy were capitalized at his own estimate and then, measured by the teachings of Jefferson and Jackson, it would make the water-logged enterprises of the trust promoters seem bona fide and honorable. This is a conservative estimate of his political worth. But I am just leaving America and haven't time to do the subject justice. I may enter into the matter more at length when I return."

"Then you do not seem to think that Mr. Cleveland has a chance for the nomination next year?"

"No. He has never had a chance since 1896, and he is so old now that if he repented in sackcloth and ashes—and it would bull the market on both sides if he undertook it—he would be overtaken by decrepitude before he could bring forth works meet for repentance. I doubt if he could carry a state in the Union.

"The people who talk about nominating him are either indulging in humor or they have very little knowledge of the sentiment that exists among the rank and file of the democratic party. The republican papers which are praising Mr. Cleveland now and urging his nomination are the very papers that accused him of filling the land with soup houses and tramps and questioned the honesty of his contracts with the bond brokers.

"If he were nominated we would have such a campaign as we have never had before, one in which the influences which secured his nomination would not support him, for the money power, while it dictates as many nominations as possible, always support the friendly candidate who has the best chance to win. He could not appeal to democrats on the ground of regularity, because he has not been regular himself; he could not appeal to democrats on the ground of democracy, for his democracy is a misnomer. While the recollection of past favors might enable him to secure a large campaign fund, but it is doubtful if he could buy enough men to furnish judges at all the polling places."

"Do you think that his nomination would break the party into pieces?"

"Oh, no. He could not carry enough of the party with him to amount to a piece."

"In view of the recent election, do you mean to say that there are no prospects for peace in the party?"

"The late elections do not indicate anything in particular. The party lost in states where the reorganizers were in control as well as in states where Kansas City platform democrats were in control. But why talk of peace when papers like the World exult over democratic defeat in Ohio and Nebraska? If the reorganizers rejoice in republican success in those states in which the party stands by the national platform, how can the democrats who believe in that platform rejoice when the so-called conservatives obtain control of the organization?"

"The reorganizers have not sought peace. They have waged war, and not an honest, open war, either. They have pretended to desire harmony, but as the price of harmony they demand a substantial repudiation of the party's position and the nomination of a man known to be unfriendly to the platforms of the last two campaigns.

"To illustrate the position of the reorganizers I need only refer to what has taken place in Ohio since the last election. Nearly four hundred thousand democrats voted for Tom Johnson. The gold newspapers announce that the conservative democrats defeated Johnson and that having defeated him, they will now demand the delegation to the national convention.

"It is even declared that they are laying plans for it. If the entire majority against Johnson was made up of conservative democrats it meant a change from party to party of only about sixty thousand votes. Upon what principle of justice or democracy, or even party policy, can sixty thousand men who defeat the ticket insist upon representing the nearly four hundred thousand who supported the ticket?"

"Do you not think that it is possible to agree upon some democrat who supported the tickets of 1896 and 1900, but who did not agree with the financial planks of the platform?"

"No."
"Why?"

"If, as the reorganizers say, the money question is dead, why do they make it a test of a candidate's fitness? When they insist that the candidate must agree in opinion with the men who left the party on the money question they themselves make the money question the paramount issue. And on the very lowest level of party expediency we certainly have more chance to win with a man whom a majority of democrats would distrust, than they would with a man whom a majority of democrats would distrust. If the righteous shall scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?"

"What do you think of Gorman and Parker?"

"I do not care to discuss individual candidates. If you will measure any candidates heretofore propose or hereafter to be proposed by what I have already said, you can decide for yourself whether they come within the limits of availability. If the democratic party is to win a success worth having it must deserve to succeed. And it cannot deserve success unless it honestly champions the cause of the people on all questions and stands ready to apply democratic principles to every problem. We cannot gain control of the government by stealth, neither can we expect to induct a democrat into the presidential office disguised as a republican.

"To the democratic voter the candidate must be known to be a democrat. It is not sufficient that he shall be suspected of carrying Democracy like a concealed weapon. There was never greater need than today of a strong, vigorous and aggressive democratic party, uncorrupted and incorruptible—a foe to injustice and the champion of right.

"Millions of republicans resent the domination of their party by great and conscienceless corporate interests, but they will never turn to the demo-
