Opening of the Shoshone Reservation

West of Casper, the northern portion of the Wind River or Shoshone Indian Reservation is to be opened to settlement in the near future. It contains 1,500,000 acres, of which 400,000 acres is good agricultural land, and the remainder excellent for grazing purposes.

The lands north of the Wind River will be thrown open to settlement June 15, 1906. The mode of allotment has not been decided upon, but it is not unlikely that it will be executed along the same lines as the opening of the Rosebud Reservation in 1904. This requires that each applicant register in person at designated United States land offices, after which the lands are divided by lot, the applicant who secures No. 1 having first choice of all the lands to be settled, number 2 has second choice, and so on until all the lands have been allotted.

Homeseekers' Rates

Special round-trip rates are in effect via the Chicago & North-Western Railway from Chicago and all points to Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming points and to other points west on the first and third Tuesdays of each month. These tickets are good twenty-one days and permit stop-overs in Homeseekers' excursion territory en route for the examination of lands or search for business openings.

Similar low rates are also in effect from points east of Chicago.

Write, enclosing stamp, for descriptive pamphlet giving full information with map showing the "Northwestern line" extension to "Shoshoni" the new town where it is probable the Government will establish registration headquarters for the opening of the Shoshone reservation.

FISH KNOW COLORS

"Fish know colors," said a keeper at the aquarium the other day. "They can distinguish between red and blue, or white and green, as well as you and I. Wait and I'll prove it."

He led the way to a tank in which were some red, some yellow, and some green fish, and in it were artificial grottoes painted respectively red, and yellow, and green. The keeper roiled the water with his hand, and the fish fled, the red ones to the red grotto, the yellow ones to the yellow grotto, and the green ones to the green grotto.

"They know which color shields them from observation best," said he. "Now I'll change the grottoes, so as to prove my statement a second time."

He moved the grottoes to different places in the tanks and again roiled the water.

The same thing followed as before. Each fish darted like a shot to the grotto of its own color, where it knew it would be best concealed.—Exchange.
