

treasury will be redeemed in lawful money.

National banks designated as regular depositories of public money shall pay upon all special and additional government deposits and all banks designated as temporary depositories shall pay upon all sums of public money deposited interest at such rate as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe, not less, however, than 1 per cent per annum upon the average monthly amount of such deposits, the rate charged being equal and uniform throughout the United States.

A commission is created, to be called the "national monetary commission," to be composed of nine members of the senate and nine members of the house of representatives, whose duty it will be to inquire into and report to congress at the earliest date practicable what changes are necessary or desirable in the monetary system of the United States or in the laws relating to banking and currency.

It is proposed that the emergency currency law shall expire by limitation on June 30, 1914.

IN INSOLENT MAJORITY

The following editorial is from the Omaha World-Herald:

Between April 1, last year, and April 18, this year, while the price paid by the packers to the farmers for cattle increased only 13 per cent, the price charged by the packers to the wholesalers increased 29 per cent. The beef trust, in other words, having charged up to the public the full increase in the cost of beef to the trust, gouged the public for an additional amount which was almost 125 per cent in excess of that increase.

The profit made by the beef trust out of a 1,000 pound steer, instead of being but 99 cents, as Mr. Garfield reported, is almost $8.

The beef trust, which, in fourteen leading markets of the country packs and slaughters 90 per cent of the cattle sold, fixes by concerted agreement of the members of the trust, on each Thursday, the price that will be paid on each day of the ensuing week for cattle, sheep and hogs, as well as the price that will be charged to wholesalers and retailers.

The trust is as absolute and more exacting now than when the government practically abandoned its prosecution two years ago. The law that it was violating then is still the law; a law which it is the duty of the federal government to enforce. But the government is making not the slightest effort to enforce it.

These are the most interesting points brought out by Congressman

Hitchcock in his speech in the house Tuesday on the beef trust.

The Omaha Bee sneers that the one effect of the speech will be to swell the volume of the Congressional Record. It may be true. The republican party is in entire control of congress, the courts, and the executive branch of the government; and the republican party refuses to lift a finger to rectify the wrongs exposed by Mr. Hitchcock and the other democratic members of congress. When Mr. Hitchcock showed from the record how the powder trust is gouging the government, the house refused to act. When he showed from the record how the armor plate trust is filching from the public treasury, the house refused to act. When he showed, conclusively, from his own experience as a publisher, how the paper trust is mulcting the newspapers and newspaper readers of tens of millions annually, the house was indifferent, and it has thus far refused to act even though the president himself has pleaded for such action.

It does not become the Bee, or any other republican newspaper to sneer at any democratic member because of his inability to right these wrongs. It is the fault, the entire fault, of the brutal, indifferent, callous republican majority, which binds and gags the minority, defies the president, and flaunts its insolence in the face of an outraged and betrayed public.

The democratic members, including Congressman Hitchcock, have done all that was humanly possible to force the republican majority to grant to the people some measure of relief at this session. They have held up the president's hands and offered their solid vote to help enact into law a number of the measures he recommends. Their failure is his failure—and it is the people's failure. And the people will know whom to hold responsible.—Omaha World-Herald.

COALS TO NEWCASTLE

A benevolent Englishman one day saw a rural looking man sitting on a stone wall swinging his legs and gazing earnestly at the telegraph wires. Going over to the yokel he said:

"Waiting to see a message go 'long, eh?"

The man grinned and said "Aye." The benevolent old gentleman got on the wall and for the next quarter of an hour tried hard to dispel his ignorance.

"Now," he said at last, "as you know something about the matter, I hope you will spread your knowledge among your mates on the farm."

"But I don't work on a farm," replied the rural citizen.

"Where, then, may I ask?"

"Me and my mates are telegraph linesmen and we are testing a new wire."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

TOM JOHNSON OF CLEVELAND

At the beginning of Tom Johnson's public activity it was the fashion among rich men who were in public life to sneer at him as a "parlor socialist." Later, alarm at his persistence turned this contempt to dislike—to be followed by resentment. But all the time Tom Johnson has been true to his avowed ideals of a square deal for the people.

A man of tremendous force, he has made these ideals win in that one large detail of municipal life to which he has directed his efforts. That detail was a fair service from public utility corporations. The three-cent fare victory in Cleveland means far more than the immediate saving to the people of that city. There was not a street railway, an electric light company, a telephone or gas or water company in any American city which was not aroused to antagonism by Mayor Tom Johnson's fight in Cleveland. For a square deal in that one utility in that one city opens the door for other municipalities.

The sticking power of the people of Cleveland and their appreciation of Tom Johnson's efforts were necessary to ultimate success. But the personality of the forceful city executive centered the power of public opinion and made it invincible.

The Cleveland incidents have been as reassuring as anything could be of the service of individualism in promoting and sustaining a social movement.—Kansas City Star.

BRAVE WOMEN

Women's delicate nerve organism subjects them to so much suffering, that it is almost inconceivable how they manage to fulfill the various household and social duties, and yet they do—and suffer.

As a rule they understand the nature of their delicate organism, but overlook the wonderful influence their nervous system has upon their general health.

They are not sufficiently impressed with the fact that all their ills are directly traceable to the nervous system. That their periodical sufferings and headaches are due to weakened nerves.

DR. MILES' NERVINE

had been wonderfully successful in revitalizing the nerves and curing all cases of nervous disorders and loss of vitality.

Thousands of delicate women have regained their health and vigor by its use, and the thoughtful fortify themselves by keeping their nervous system strong and vigorous by its use.

"From a thin nervous wreck, miserable and wretched, I am now enjoying splendid health, and it is all traceable to your splendid medicine, Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine."—Mrs. Maud B. Oplinger, Philadelphia, Pa.
