

5 DRESSES ANY MAN
FREE TRIAL OFFER

I WILL give you my splendid outfit on a 60-day free trial entirely at my own risk, providing you are the first from your locality to accept my generous offer. I have always sold these splendid outfits to dealers, but this season, commencing with this very day, I have made up my mind to sell direct to the wearer and save every man the enormous profit that has always gone into the pocket of the dealer. To make my new plan a success right from the start I decided to place with one reliable person in each community my complete outfit for $5.00 and not one cent more.

This is my stylish ten-piece outfit—1 stylishly tailored suit, 1 President dress shirt, 1 King Edward cap, 1 pair Empire suspenders, 1 pair moud-proof hose, 1 Chesterfield tie, 2 fine handkerchiefs, 1 set gold buttons.

To be safe in securing this offer send at once for tape, order blank, etc., for I can give to but one in a locality at this advertising price.

back to a period of prosperity? We find from every state assurances of reproof. The reports from our own friends and from the enemy confirm our hopes. And we have another evidence that no one will dispute, and that is that the president himself has become frightened at the chance of his candidate and rushes into the arena to help the man whom he thought could not fight his own battles. I have a right to criticize the action of the president. I have a right to assume that he would not have entered the arena if he had been satisfied with the progress of the campaign, but, my friends, fear and fright are no excuse for the degradation of the high office which he holds. (Applause.) I believe he did wrong when he undertook to select a republican candidate and force the candidate upon his party. Tell me that the president is a good man and that he selected a good man? That is no excuse. If a good president can pick out a good man and force that man upon his party, then by the same precedent a bad president can pick out a bad man and force him upon his party.

You can not defend a bad precedent by saying a good man may make good use of it. Presidents die—even good presidents; the people live and can be trusted to do their own selecting without the interfering of a president. (Great applause.) If you say that the president did right to assume the position of dictator in his own party, I deny that he has the right to use that office that belongs to all the people as if it were a party asset that belonged to him personally. That office is our office. His salary is paid by all of us, and it is paid on the theory that he is our servant. If we are mistaken, if that office belongs to the republican party, then let him repay to us democrats the amount of his salary that we have paid, and let us use it to counteract his influence in this campaign. (Applause.) I dare to criticize his use of that office. I aspire to it myself. That is the highest office in this world; that office has with it the sacred traditions that have come down from Washington and Jefferson and Jackson and Lincoln, and if I take it, I want to take it as they left it and not dragged in the mire of politics and made a football between the parties. (Applause.)

When I was in congress I tried to secure the passage of a resolution proposing an amendment that would make the president intelligible to reelection. I believe that that office is so high, that the power that the president wields is so great, a power more vast than any king on earth today wields, I believe that with all that power and patronage and influence the occupant of the White House ought not to be subjected to the temptation to use these influences to advance his own ambition, and because I believe it, I have said in three campaigns that if I was elected I would not be a candidate for reelection. I do not want to sit there for four years and have interested politicians whisper in my ear what I ought to do to get another nomination or another election. If I am elected I want to occupy that office with a purpose; single to serve the people who elected me. (Applause.) I want to tear from my heart every personal ambition and devote four years of my life and whatever ability I have and whatever energy I possess to the purpose of restoring this government to its old foundation, making it again a government under which every citizen shall draw from society a reward proportionate to the service that he renders to mankind. (Great applause.)

—POLITICS AND—
CREAM SEPARATORS

The manufacturer of a much advertised cream separator, sold mainly by implement dealers, is out with an announcement to employes that if Bryan should be elected his factory will have to at once close down. Regardless of political preference everybody may judge for himself of the propriety of threatening employes in this manner.

But if this separator factory does close down it will not be because either Taft or Bryan is elected, but because of the sweeping success of the new 1908 line of Improved DE LAVAL machines, which has already "closed down" most attempted competition.

So far as DE LAVAL machines are concerned, there are going to be just as many cows and just as much milk to separate whether Taft or Bryan is chosen president, and the well informed buyers of separators are going to put their money into DE LAVAL machines in as large proportion one way or the other, and do so in constantly increasing proportion as comparative separator merit becomes more a matter of actual knowledge and less of mere catalogue and advertising claims.

We are not in politics and not trying to dictate to other people how to vote, but we are in the separator business and are trying by every justifiable means to bring about the universal use of DE LAVAL Cream Separators because of their overwhelming superiority in every feature of separator practicability.
