New York is getting ready for its city election. The democratic union, an independent democratic organizasimilarly honored by the municipal democracy, and independent body, earlier in the week. The republican city convention nominated a ticket as follows: For mayor, Otto T. Ban-nard, president of the New York Trust company, resident of Manhattan borough; for comptroller, Wil-president of the credit men's national

A Mobile, Ala., dispatch carried by the Fuller prohibition law, which prevents transportation of liquors for delivery, in-operative, and discharged Louis Early and Mathew Cody, who were arrested here on Saturday last with wagons on which were barrels of whisky and beer. He based his decision on one recently rendered by Judge Sayre of the supreme court. This is a severe blow to the prohibitionists. This provision of the Fuller law was considered the most powerful weapon they had."

L. R. Glavis, who was removed from his position as chief of the Seattle division of the land office, has sent to the president this letter:
"The President.—Sir: I have laid before you all the essential facts in my possession regarding the official conduct of certain cases by the department of the interior concerning coal lands in Alaska. As chief of the field division directly concerned and because of the tremendous values involved I felt my personal responsibility most keenly. The evidence indicated that a great syndicate is trying to secure a monopoly of this coal, in direct violation of the law. Ultimately I felt myself obliged to appeal to you over the heads of my superior officers in order to bring about the enforcement of the law, which in a measure would conserve these coal lands to the people at large, and I can not regret my action. Since there may be now even greater danger that the title of these coal lands will be fraudulently secured by the syndicate, it is no less my duty to my country to make public the facts in my possession, concerning which I firmly believe that you have been misled. This I shall do in the near future with a full sense of the seriousness of my action and with deep abiding respect for your great office. Respectfully, L. R. Glavis."

Melancholy and Mental Depression

Also Known as Low Spirits and "The Blues" Are Almost Invariably Caused by Indigestion and Stomach Derangement

Chronic melancholy is a symptom frequently encountered in the victims of dyspepsia and indigestion.
Defective blood nutrition or anaemia appears to be the physical state with which the great majority of cases of melancholy and mental depression are connected, and to which all modes of treatment are directed.
Powerful and permanent and depressing moral and mental emotions act as effectively in arresting healthy digestion and alimentation as the eating of injudicious food, or the use of nourishment under circumstances such as the respiration of impure air, or indulgence in intemperate tendencies, which render proper assimilation of food impossible.

But while depressing mental emotions may cause disturbed digestion, on the other hand, dyspepsia may, in turn, cause mental depression, so that cause and effect may be transposed. Melancholy or "the blues" should not be regarded as a distinct and independent affection, as it is almost invariably traceable to, and dependent upon, some disorder of the digestive system.

The victims of this distressing condition present not only the usual symptoms of indigestion or nervous dyspepsia, but also a long train of symptoms of a peculiarly melancholic and morbid character, such as extreme increase of nerve-sensibility, palpitations, strange internal sensations, which simulate many other diseases, together with an exaggerated uneasiness and anxiety chiefly concerning the health. They imagine they have all the diseases known to Pathology, and are great pessimists, prone to look on the dark side of life. They are easily annoyed by small things, which if their health and digestion were good, would never bother them; and they feel constantly irritable, have dark forebodings, and fear the approach of some imaginary evil, impending disaster or calamity.

If they experience indigestion-pains in the heart region, they think it is heart disease; uneasiness in the chest means consumption, while the various other fugitive aches and pains distributed over the system they imagine to be symptoms of some fatal, organic disease.

Every one of these morbid symptoms depend upon a disturbed state of the digestion, and for the removal and cure of this condition, there is no better remedy in existence than Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They get right at the seat of the trouble, cure the dyspepsia, and remove the cause. Every particle of food in the stomach is thoroughly and properly digested, with the result that the blood, which owing to a long-continued indigestion, mal-absorption, mal-nutrition and mal-assimilation of food, is in a thin, anaemic condition, is rapidly built up, and improved in quality—this improvement progressing along with the increased power of the stomach to properly digest its food through the aid-giving and toning-up properties of these powerful little digestive tablets; so that the melancholic and depressive symptoms disappear along with the dyspepsia.
