A London cablegram, carried by the Associated Press says: A "blazing indiscretion" is how the Morning Post describes the speech of William J. Bryan, the secretary of state, at the St. Patrick's day banquet given by Irish-Americans at Washington. The Post reprints the portion of the speech in which Mr. Bryan congratulated the Irish nationalists on their success in the matter of the home rule bill, and referred to the virtual end of hereditary rule by the English empire. The Post says that while it does not suppose that Mr. Bryan intended to give offense he should understand that his speech is regarded with keen resentment by many people in Great Britain, and in their opinion is a gratuitous and unwarrantable interference in the domestic affairs of the United Kingdom. "As on the prudence and sagacity with which the secretary of state discharges his task depends the relations of the United States with other countries," continues the Post, "it behooves him to observe caution in his references to other nations."

The illustrations herein tell the whole story about the treatment of Catarrh. The BLACK, where the arrows point in Figs. 1, 2 and 3, shows how little of the disease, Catarrh, can possibly be reached by the usual methods of treatment and in Fig. 4 the BLACK shows the complete sweep made by Dr. Blosser's Remedy.

Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membrane. It is characterized by a discharge through the nostrils or into the throat. It usually begins with a cold in the head. Beginning in the nostrils it spreads to all the mucous membranes of the body, even getting into the stomach and lungs. The nasty discharge being swallowed, it upsets the stomach, and from the stomach it is taken into the blood, and poisons and deranges the whole body.

The disease is all the time inclined to work its way from the nose back into the head-down into the throat -into the bronchial tubes and lungs. Herein is Its greatest danger.

Dr. Blosser's Discovery

While engaged in the general practice of medicine Dr. Blosser had many patients suffering from Catarrh whom he was unable to cure, although he prescribed for them-by the rules taught in medical books and coleges. He saw that the methods of treatment were wrong, and reasoned that as Catarrh is produced by breathing cold and damp air, so it should be cured by breathing a warm medicated vapor.

After nine years of investigation he discovered a combination of healing herbs, leaves and flowers (containing no tobacco or habit-forming drugs) which, when placed in an ordinary clean pipe-made into medicated rigarettes or burned on a plate and by drawing the medicated smoke into the mouth and inhaling into the lungs, or by sending it out through the nostrils in a perfectly natural way, would speedily relieve all catarrhal diseases. As shown in the accompanying illustration the warm, healing vapor is carried directly to the very parts affected. This remedy fights and kills Catarrh where liquids, sprays, douches, salves and medicated creams cannot possibly go. It is a most reliable treatment, and is so simple and convenient that it can be used at home by man, woman or child.
