

by means of INTELLIGENT impulses sent over the nerves.

We teach that this power within does EVERY-THING that is done in the human body, that it does nine distinct things to keep the mechanism in trim and each one of these jobs we call a function. It is these nine distinct things, jobs or functions of Innate Intelligence which we call the nine primary physical functions.

To use the diagram again for purposes of illustration we might convey the idea as illustrated above.

Please note that in this diagram we have grouped the five organs of special sense under the sensory function, as all of these five senses have to do with vibrations from the outside that are transmitted over the nerves from the receivers to the brain, where they are interpreted by Innate Intelligence. This diagram shows that the direction of the vibration is from the outside to the inside, while the direction of the mental impulse, by means of which the other eight functions are performed, is from the inside—from Innate Intelligence—to the outside tissues.

To the chiropractor the body is the temple of the living spirit. It is through the medium of the five senses that the Innate Intelligence comes in contact with the outer world and by means of mental impulses sent over the nerves that Innate Intelligence does the eight jobs by which it INTELLIGENTLY adapts the organism to the requirements of life.

What, then, is disease?

Dis-ease to the chiropractor is simply one or more of these nine jobs done wrong—a function abnormally expressed.

The question naturally arising in your mind at this point is, why are these functions abnormally expressed or why are these jobs done wrong? Our answer is—because the nerves over which these vibrations and impulses travel are impaired, by a vertebra becoming misaligned and pressing upon the nerve, thereby either excluding the vibration, as in deafness, blindness, or the loss of smell, taste or touch—or by imprisoning the impulse from Innate to the cells, tissues or organs of the body.

What is deafness, blindness, etc., to the chiropractor? It is simply the exclusion of a vibration from the outside by a subluxated vertebra pressing on the nerve.

What is paralysis to the chiropractor? It is simply the imprisoning of a motor impulse from Innate by a subluxated vertebra pressing on the nerve.

And how does the chiropractor overcome these conditions?

By adjusting the vertebrae that are subluxated, to normal position, thereby restoring free and normal communication between Innate Intelligence and the cells, tissues and organs of the body.

The chiropractor doesn't say that he heals, treats or cures. All he pretends to do is to AD-

JUST the subluxated vertebra to normal, thereby restoring the communication between the inside intelligence and the outside world.

Instead of dis-ease being something from the outside that somehow gets inside, to the chiropractor it is something—a vibration—from the outside that CANNOT get inside, or it is something from the inside—a functional impulse—that CANNOT get outside, because the channel over which it travels—the nerves—are obstructed.

Contrast this conception of disease and adjustment with the medical method of diagnosis and treatment, and you will see how radically, fundamentally and absolutely Chiropractic differs from all other methods.

The graduates of Chiropractic schools that go into the world with this idea in mind have a message for the world and their practice, necessarily, consists of finding and adjusting the vertebrae that are subluxated, thereby interfering with the normal communication of the inside power with the outside world. However, there is a horde of drugless practitioners who have found it profitable to change their business cards to "Chiropractor" because of good results achieved by those who are demonstrating the correctness of the Chiropractic idea.

These incompetents are bringing the entire Chiropractic profession into disrepute, as are also a multitude of schools that teach anything in the name of Chiropractic. Those desiring the service of a chiropractor should get a list of the competent practitioners in their city by writing to the Universal Chiropractor's Association, at Davenport, Iowa, and those desiring to study Chiropractic should get a list of schools that are making an honest effort to inculcate the principles of the science, from the same source.

The science stands or falls on the correctness of the fundamentals upon which it is based, but not upon the hodge-podge that is practiced in the name of Chiropractic by those whose only qualification is a desire to get easy money.

"RISING TIDE"

A London dispatch, dated April 11 says: The British government is considering whether action can be taken to meet the representations of America concerning smuggling of liquor into the United States from the West

This announcement was made Wednesday in the house of commons by Roland McNeill, under secretary for foreign affairs.

"It is very difficult for the government to interfere with the legitimate export of any article from British territory but the government deplores the complicity of British subjects in infringement of laws of the United States," McNeill declared.

In respose to a question, the under secretary stated that the government was aware of "the rising tide of indignation" in the United States concerning rum-running but he said he was informed of the charges of Emmanuel Shinwell, a laborite, that British seamen are paid high wages and furnished revolvers to carry on their illegal pursuits.
