New portions of the unsettled domain are daily becoming known and settled, and conse mently towns are next in order, for the acnadation of the pioneer; which spring into existence as rapidly, in proportion to the em nigration. Already we find it in contempla o unite the now largely extended cities of Omaha and Florence, by platting the plateau between the two towns and on about the same round which is generally known as "Douglas City." Wealthy capitalists are engaged in the enterprise, and the presumption is, that they intend to make a strong demonstration in rearing a new city.

Among the many places of noteriety, in these days, stands very prominent "Crese I beleive the new town between this place City," at the junction of the Pigeon and Mi souri vallies, which is laid out with the expectation of the establishment of the Railroad ing up here, in Cresent City, Omaha and Coun- Depot at that point, on the road leading from latter place. Considerable preperation is being made for the improvement of the town and already they have a Steam Sawmill on derway, and a yard cleaned for the manufai ture of brick. Several water mills, and the finest portion of Pottawattamie county are in its vicinity.

Being in Omaha a few days since, I ascerined that the Douglas House was still closed and I took quarters at the Pacific in Council Bluffs. But I learned that efforts were being made to open a new house, which will acco modate many; belonging to C. B. Smith, the Territorial Auditor; and other houses are build ing for similar purposes; so that travelers to that place will not be under the necessity.
