Bepartment. CUTTING HAY BY MACHINERY.

Since the introduction of mowing machines as one of the economies of the farm, a change has been wrought in the process of gathering the haycrop; but, like all great innovations, which upset the original order of things, and before the best routine of management has become determined BOOTS & SHOES by experience, it has produced a diversity of modes, some of which occasionally are productive of great Having been bought and shipped at low figures, disaster. Thus, in numerous instances, ducements as have not heretofore been offered. it in as fast as possble. It not unfrequently happens that from ten to twenty acres are thus prostrated, before a load of cured hay is gathered into the barn.

There are many arguments advanced in defence of this mode of proceeding, the principal one of which is, that the farmer who has his hay thus cut does not own a machine. He either hires Pure White Lead, a neighbor by the acre or the day to Linseed Oil, do the work, who is unwilling to make Spanish Whiting, Red Lead, more than one job of it,-or he owns Litherage a machine jointly with others, and White Chalk, cannot so arrange matters as to have Spanish Brown, his own and theirs cut in minute and Cream of Turter, Tartaric Acid, disconnected portions. Another reason, Sulpher Carb, Soda, even if he owns a machine, is, that Vinegar, more work can be performed, if it be Sal Soda, of one kind for a considerable length Saltbeter, of time, than if it be broken in upon Borax, by frequent changes; hence, all mowing Mex. Liniment until the mowing is done, then all Morland's do. raking until the hay is gathered into Nerver and Bone do, winrows ready for the mow or stack, London's day and then all pitching, carting and Jars' Expt. mowing away, finishes the job in consecutive and homogeneous labors.

This would undoubtedly be a rapid and easy method of proceeding, could favorable weather be depended upon;
