The Gentleman's Magazine.

This oldest Monthly Magnzine, the Patriarch among Periodical Publications, is so well known among literary men of all countries, and especially by all who hterature of the last century, that it is necessary to say very little concerning it.

The Gentleman's Magazine was originated by Edward Cave, the well-known Printer and Publisher, a man remarkable for his intelligence and industry, who edited and conducted it under the cognomen of Sylvanus Urban, Gent. Its first office of publication was in the venerable gate-house of the Knights of St. John, near Smithfield in Lendon. Among it early contributors was Dr. Johnson, whose first liter ary productions appeared in this Magazine, Contrary to the forebodings of many backsetters of the time, it succeeded from its commencement, and has main-tained an honorable and unblemished reputation for more than a century and a quarter. Its access brought forward many compeditors, but Sylvanus Urban has always held his position, and in his in er years has proved as great a favorite as before. With the number for July, 1856, the Gentleman's Magazine changed publishers, but its general characto; will remain the same as before. More matters of interest will, from time to time, be introduced, and among all those readers who care to know the opinions of English Scolars and Gentleman on the topics of the day, it it will be as much looked for as usual; more and special pains will be taken with the Obit-uary, which will be made a faithful memorial of all persons of emineuce. It will also endeavor to retain $1,25 its position as a worthy organ and representative of Historical and Archaeological Literature.

. We have made arrangements with the present Proprieters, Messrs. J. H. & J. Parker, of London, to publish the Magazine in this country, and will supply it with regularity. Terms - $5 per annum, or 50 cents per number; those remitting $5 in advance, will receive the Magnaine free of postage. DIX, EDWARDS & CO., 321 Broadway, New York.
