Miscellaneous.
Congress in 1860.

We find the following in the Columbus Enquirer, a paper which has always given honest credits, or else we should suspect it was a sly "Punch," from some sarcastic observer across the Atlantic:

July 5, 1860.—Mr. D. Farcer, Dem., of Kentucky, brought forward a motion for the suppression of oral discussion in the Legislature. The honorable member proposed, as a substitute, that all questions at issue should be settled by single combat, bowie-knife or pistol.

Honorable members were, up to the present period, in the habit of sticking at nothing, and he (Mr. Farcer) thought that this proposal would certainly obviate such a state of things by giving them something to stick at.

Mr. Barker, (Dem.) of Virginia, seconded the motion, and also he would be happy to second any of the combatants in want of his assistance. He believed his qualifications in this respect were well known to the honorable House; and if any member was ignorant of them, he would take the liberty of recapitulating.
The honorable member was here proceeding to give the details of several sanguinary difficulties, when he was interrupted by—

Mr. White, (Whig) of Tenn. What does the honorable member mean when thrusting the details of his duels on the House? Good wine needs no bush, and a successful duelist needs no praise.— There was no danger of the honorable member's deeds not being trumpeted to the world, because everybody knows that "murder will out."

Mr. Barker—You are a liar and a thief! (No sensation whatever.) Mr. White—The honorable rascal opposite has called me a liar and a thief.
I believe that the House will support me when I term him a murderer and assassin. (Less sensation than before.)

Mr. Barker—Who robbed the man on the steamboat? A-h-h!
Mr. White—Who ran away from the Revere House without paying his bill?
E-h-h!

Mr. Barker (shaking his fist)—Silver spoons.
Mr. White—I did not insure my house for double its value and then set it on fire.

Mr. Barker—If the honorable member ain't a coward, he'll have it out with me now.

Mr. White (jumping on the table).
Come on you ruffian.

The Speaker—Fair play, gentlemen.
Recollect, if you please, that the proceedings will be reported.

The honorable members then had a setto, in which both displayed considerable science, and a great deal of animosity.
Bets ran high as to who would win, and we understand that the Speaker specu-lated heavily. After five rounds, however, White gave in, and Barker was carried home by his triumphant friends. We believe that a meeting between the gentlemen is arranged to come off to-morrow. This incident agreeably relieved the monotony of the week's debates, that were growing exceedingly tedious.

Woman's Love—A Beautiful Incident.

Six years ago, says a Milwaukee paper a young man just entering on life, under the influence of rum, committed a crime against society, was tried in the city, convicted, and sent to Waupun, where he served out his time behind the prison bars. Before his trial a fair girl had promised to link fortunes with him, and cruel was the blow to her. But she loved him. All through his six years did she wait for his release. With a true woman's heart, she believed him innocent, innocent, at least, before God; and like the magnet, she held on her steady way.
Long were the years to him. Slow passed the hours. Seconds were minutes, minutes were hours, hours days, days weeks, weeks months, months years, and years were like ages. Every tolling of the prison-bell struck deep upon his heart, and every sunset took another thread from the long skein. Nor were the hours less weary to her. Hope, that blessed angel, sat by her day by day, and reposed on her pillow by night. Some there were who laughed at her holy love, who sneer-ed so meanly at her lover, a prisoner miles away. But little it mattered to her: others might laugh—she wept: others might point to a man in prison garb, toiling away from morn till night, with but one star to guide him on. She saw but the honest soul that might be saved, or lost, and woman that she was, nerved herself to hear their jibes and jeers.

Blessed words came to him in his lonely cell, words of love, of kindness, and stronger grew the heart of him who had truly his better angel to watch over his unbroken fortune. Each word from her lightened the hours as they slowly went by, and larger grew the day on which liberty was to come. Men visited him and with careless word or speaking eye, threw into his cell a maddening thought on which his soul must feed and tremblingly shrink to the darkest corner of his living tomb. Then a letter from her would dash aside the dark curtains and beckoned him a spot of sunshine outside, and beyond the present reach. So passed the year. Friends died and he wept over them.

The sin was long since atoned for, and at last the little spot of sunshine crept in his cell, and entering by the key-hole of his door led him forth into the bright rays of liberty. He was conducted to the office of the prison by McGaw, and a citizen's dress, in place of a prison suit given him, and led into an inner room, where stood she who, years before, had promised before God to be his. What a meeting!

On the evening train the two arrived in this city, and were, by one of our di-vines, joined in marriage. We were witnesses to the ceremony, and shall never forget it. Never forget the eye moistened with happiness, nor the throbbing of the heart that had so long waited and trusted. Saved, saved! May the future be all the brighter for the cloud that has hung so long over it, and true friends ever ready to lend a helping hand. We believe in woman's love—in woman's devotion the more, after knowing the facts above stated. God bless the true heart wherever found.

Two Elopements in one Family the Same Night!

In our last issue we noticed the fact that a young couple from Fayette County Ky., arrived at the Burnet House, Tuesday night and were married almost immediately, the young man being greatly alarmed lest his father, who he once thought he saw at a station on the railway between this city and Cythians, was in close pursuit, and might arrive in time to tear his betrothed from his arms.
The sequel to the story, which was developed in a few hours later, is as follows:

While the young couple were receiving the congratulations of those who had witnessed the ceremony at the Burnet, a similar tragedy, or comedy—whichever the reader pleases—was being enacted at the Spencer House. The young man had not been mistaken when he thought he saw his father on the road, for the old rascal, who, it seems, was in the same humor with his son, had actually eloped with a young widow in his neighborhood, and came to this city on the same errand and on the same train. They escaped recognition by taking, as it happened, different cars, and stopping at different hotels.

When the young man learned how matters stood, accompanied by his bride, he repaired to the Spencer House, and sending his card up to the old gentleman, who little suspected that his hopeful of-spring was in the city, much less married, he came down unattended, when the following conversation took place:

Old Gentleman—Well sir; what are you doing here?
Young Gentleman—"I learned last evening that you were about to elope with widow—, and have followed you to the city to see if it could be possible you could do such a thing."

O. G.—That's very considerate in you, young man, (spoken somewhat tartly, but) is it any particular business of yours what I do?
Y. G.—"O, no; but the example, the" O. G.—"Zounds! sir, do you come to teach me propriety? Don't you suppose I know what's right and wrong?" Y. G.—"Why certainly you do, or you ought to; but what would you say if I were to do as you have done?" O. G.—"Say? I would say you had more spirit than I ever gave you credit of possessing."

Y. G.—"Wouldn't you be angry?" O. G.—"Of course not, you dog; but what makes you ask such a silly question as that?"

The young blood here began a series of gymnastic exercises, which made the old gentleman think his son had suddenly recovered his self possession, he returned to the room, and before the father could recover his self possession, he returned with his blushing bride; when the two bent down before him, and half audibly said, "Your blessing."

It was now the old man's turn to play mad, but comprehending and forgiving all in a moment, he only said:
"You young rascal! If you are this bad now, what will you be when you have my years? Come up stairs and see your mother."

Both couples left yesterday on the same train for their "Old Kentucky Home." Cin. Enquirer.

A Story for Boys.

It is related of a Parisian mother, that on her giving her son forty pieces of silver in his portion, she made him swear never to tell a lie, and said:
"Go, my son, I consign thee to God, we shall not meet again till the day of judgment."

The youth went away, and the party he traveled with were assaulted by robbers.

One fellow asked the boy what he had,
and he answered:
"Forty dinars are sewed up in my garments."

The robber laughed thinking the boy jested. Another asked the same question and received the same answer. At last the chief called him, and asked him what he had. The boy replied:
"I have told you of your people already that I had forty dinars sewed up in my clothes."

The chief ordered the clothes to be ripped open, and the money was found.
"And how came you to tell this?"
"Because," replied the boy, "I would not be false to my mother, to whom I promised never to tell a lie."

"Child," said the robber, "art thou so mindful of thy duty to thy mother at thy years, and art I insensible at my age of the duty I owe to God? Give me thy hand that I may swear repentance on it."

He did so, and his followers were struck with the scene.
"You have been our leader in guilt," they said to the chief, "be the same in the path of virtue," and taking the boy's hand, they took the oath of repentance on it.

What a Little Saving will do.
Figures sometimes produce almost incredible results. Thus, for instance, if a young man, on his twentieth birthday, will invest $100 in any stock paying ten per cent. annually, and thereafter will invest the same amount and the accumulation of interest, he will be worth when he is thirty years old, $1,753. when forty years old, $6,300, when fifty years old, $18,150, when sixty years old, $48,700.
How simple, then, is the plan by which a youth of the present day can pass his old age in comfort and luxury! He has only to regulate his expenses so as to save one hundred dollars from his income.
If the amount saved be large, then the sum total will be increased in proportion. Only think of it, that $500 saved annually, and invested in ten per cent. stock, will amount in forty years to $243, 500, $1,000,000 invested in the same way for ten years will amount to $2, 588,000, in twenty years to $6,746,000, in thirty years to $17,384,628, in forty years to $43,250,808. No wonder, then that the Rothschilds have amassed such boundless fortunes.

Walter and Willie.
The Mobile Register tells the following:
We happened to witness an amusing little incident, which occurred in the wholesale dry-goods establishment situated on the north-west corner of St. Francisco and Water streets, a day or two since, which was worth seeing, if it was not worth publishing.

A widow lady of our acquaintance has two little boys, aged about eight years—twins—who for oneness of size, features, voice and action, would rival the celebrated twins of San Francisco. They are so much alike that even the mother is at times puzzled to know which is Willie and which is Walter. When one deserves a spanking, the other frequently gets it, and on account of their exact likeness to each other, she recently came near losing one of them. She had occasion to administer a small dose of paregoric to Willie, and a few moments after Walter seemed to see something of the same sort. She turned but a moment to get the medicine, but in that time the boys had got mixed, and by some means Willie swallowed another dose, and shortly afterwards went to bed and fell asleep. He continued in a stupor for some ten or fourteen hours, much to the astonishment and alarm of the mother, who saw that upon Walter the drug had no effect. It was not until Willie told her that she had given him two doses that she discovered the mistake. But to the incident.

The mother having some business to transact in the store, took the two boys with her. They were dressed exactly alike, and during the stay of their mother they each took a stand in separate doors fronting on Water-street, to see what was to be seen. While standing there an old gentleman, who was walking slowly by, saw one of them, and, admiring the little fellow's intelligent countenance and healthy look, stopped and asked him his name.

"My name
