O. A. GRAVES, Bookseller, Stationer, and News Agent, Post Office building, Corner Douglas and Seventh streets, Omaha, N. T., is our authorized agent for both the Advertiser and Farmer.

S. HARDING & CO., News and Literary Depot, Hull's building, Main street, opposite the Nuckolls House, Nebraska City, are our authorized Agents for both the Advertiser and Farmer.

The Fourth.

Another National birth-day is "numbered among the things that were." The fact, in this section of country, within the knowledge of our knowledge, was celebrated in some way or other. In this city there was no regular, "old fashioned" celebration. With some, the day was anticipated, commencing the evening of the 3d, and "running all night, till broad day light, and go home with the girls in the morning." The morning of the Fourth was proclaimed by the ringing of Church bells, and the usual number of rounds from the cannon. Quite a number of our citizens, with the Band, attended the celebration at Rock Port, where we are told there was a great crowd and a general good time.

At the the usual hour, Mr. COMFORT, of the Mammoth Bakery, in this City, had prepared and spread in Whitney's Hall, a most excellent repast of light edibles, ice cream, summer beverages, etc.

In the evening a very respectable number of citizens assembled in the Congregational Church, where National Odes were sung, the Declaration of Independence read by Dr. HOLLADAY, and an oration delivered by Dr. MCPHERSON. Rev. Mr. Tipton followed extemporaneously, in his usual fluent and interesting style, portraying the trying times and days of those who voluntarily "pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors," to secure for us their decendents, the liberties we enjoy.

There were also several dancing parties during the evening, where the young folks enjoyed themselves. We dropped in a few moments at JACOB MARHON'S where our fellow citizens, characteristic for their sociability, and enjoyment on such occasions, were participating in "whirling in the giddy waltz."

Altogether, the day passed in quite an agreeable manner in Brownville.

Run Off.—Five negroes, belonging to Alex MAJORS of Nebraska City, took up their beds and walked, on Tuesday night last. They took the U. G. R. R. The News thinks, assisted by the "nasty Abolitionists of Civil Bend and Tabor."

"Who dat knockin' at de door?"

"Still they Come."—HACKNEY, the proprietor of the most extensive, best arranged, best supplied, and best kept ranch between the Missouri River and Denver City, has placed us under obligations to him by remembering us in the shape of a bountiful supply of dried buffalo and antelope meat. It was fine, sweet and tender. "Do so some more." William, do not forget that Buffalo Calf, or young antelope.

Lucid Inscription.—We were shown a letter dropped in the Post Office in this place, last week, bearing the following direction and arrangement—we omit the name:

To
Mr. H—— H——
Ri county P ofis
Cellem N T

It was evidently intended for Salem, Richardson County, N. T.

Wonder why the second number of the Nebraska City News, issued since their new office arrived, was not sent to Brownville subscribers! Forgot it? "Cursed Postmaster, s!" send the package a wrong way? Or did that number contain something not for their eye in this especial region?

Ladies Repository, for July is received. It is an interesting number; contains a fine portrait of Rev. CHAS. COLLINS; a steel plate engraving "Wynn-Stag," Denbighshire, England, and much valuable reading matter.

We learn from our Post Master, J. H. MAUK, Esq., that the number of letters sent from this Post Office for the quarter ending June 30, 1860, was 3,214.

"Not if the Court Understand Herself."—Dr. Charles Albert is hereby informed that we have pretty much quit inserting "the enclosed advertisement in your paper and charge the lowest rate for six months," unless the order comes from some responsible source. We've "been there" several or leveral times!

Thanks to KNIBLEY of the Hesperian for late St. Louis papers in advance of Uncle Sam's "line of slow coaches."

Hot Weather.—On Sunday, last, in this place, the degree of heat, as indicated by the Thermometer, was 108, in the shade!

Gen. Estabrook passed up on the steamer Omaha, on Saturday evening last.

Congress adjourned on the 28th, ult.

They Killed Him.

A fellow was once telling of his wonderful adventures with the Indians. He had encountered and fought them in every possible way and shape. Imagining that his listeners were all trembling at his narrow escapes he concluded to give them a settler, and so commenced as follows:

"One evening late I was a goin' up a steep holler. Well, it war a perfect cliff on each side, straight up and down over two hundred feet. As I war a goin' along I looked back, and thar I sees mor'n one hundred Injins a slippin' along after me. Thar's no chance to run out on either side for the rocks war steep and high, so I jist commenced paddlin' it right up the holler. They hooked it right up after me, and we run mor'n five miles. At last I cum to the end of the holler right up agin another high rock, and they had me hemmed in. I found thar was no chance to get away, so I sot to and shot two of 'em and—"

Here the narrator paused to think, as if he had forgotten some part of his adventure. His eager listeners asked him how he came out.

"Well," he continued, "I sot to and shot two of them, and the rest all come runnin' at me a yellin', and a screamin' like devils, and—"

Here followed another pause.

"What did they do?" asked one who had become much inteterested.

"Well, sir, they jist cum a sweepin' up like so many varmints, a makin' the very ground ring with their yells—and—"

"But what did they do?"

Seeing he had got his story somewhat tangled up, he exclaimed, pettishly:

"They all rushed on me and killed me of course—what in the h—ll else do you think they could do?"

The Last Drink.

Dan James has a wife, an accomplished and beautiful lady who loves him devotedly, but she finds too many bricks in his hat. One night he came home tight, and was not very much astonished, but rather frightened to find his worthy lady sitting up for him. She smiled when he came in; she always does.

"You stayed out so late," she said, "that I feared you had been taken sick."

"Hic—ain't sick, wife; b-but don't you think I'm a little t-tight?

"A very little, perhaps, my dear, but that is nothing—you have so many associates, you say, you must join them in a glass once in a while."

"Wife, you are too good—the truth is I am drunk!"

"Oh, no, only a juley too much, love, that's all. Well, take a glass of ale at any rate; it cannot hurt you, dear, I want one myself.

The lady hastened to open a bottle, and as she placed two tumblers before her on the side-board, she put in one a very powerful emetic. Filling the glass with the foaming ale, she handed that, and with a most bewitching smile, to her husband. Suspicion came cloudily upon his mind. She had never been so kind before when he was drunk. He looked at the glass, raised it to his lips—then hesitated.

"Dear, won't you just taste mine, to make it sweeter?" said he.

"Certainly, love," replied the lady, taking a mouthful, which she was very careful not to swallow.

Suspicion vanished, and so did the ale, emetic, and all, down the throat of the satisfied husband. After spitting out the taste, the lady finished her glass, but seemed to be in no hurry to retire. She fixed a foot-tub of water before an easy chair, for which the husband was curious to know the reason. A few minutes after the gulp and splurge from the throat of the husband gave the answer.

The brick was gone when he rose from the easy chair, and he never after carried one home to his wife.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY.

1500 Pictorial Illustrations.

Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, containing 1500 Pictorial Illustrations beautifully executed.

9,000 to 10,000 NEW WORDS in the Vocabulary,

Table of SYNONYMS, by Prof Goodrich,

in which more than two thousand words are carefully discriminated, forming a fuller work on English Synonyms, of itself, than any other issued, besides Crabb, and believed in advance of that.

Table, giving Pronunciation of Names of 8000 distinguished Persons of Modern Times,

Peculiar use of Words and Terms in the Bible,

With other new Features, together with all the matter OF PREVIOUS EDITIONS,

Comprised in a Vol. of 1750 pages.

We have seen specimen sheets of the Pictorial Illustrations. They are well executed, and will often be found useful in giving a much more correct idea of an object than can be obtained by a definition.—N. Y. Tribune, April 18, 1859.

We have seen specimen pages of portions in architecture and ornithology, and find them of artistic beauty as well as of great practical value.—Christian Mirror, April 12, 1859.

We have seen specimen sheets of these Illustrations, and can hardly see how they can be improved in beauty or accuracy.—Boston Evening Transcript.

Webster's Pictorial Dictionary in Boston.

So exhaustive and satisfactory we have uniformly found it to be, that enlargement and improvement seemed hardly desirable.—Boston Journal

As a whole the work has no parallel, nor is it at all probable that it will soon have one.—Boston Traveler

Leaves so little either for the strict scholar, the man of general culture, or the limited employer of common words, to desire, that it may with truth be said, that nothing in the lexicographical line is left to be desired. The critics of Webster are, as a general thing, mousers and mole hunters.—Boston Ledger.

Some of the foremost scholars of the age, both in Europe and this country, have been occupied for years in the task of revision and addition.—Boston Transcript

It is a fixed fact, a living entity, and will maintain its place as the most complete and accurate Dictionary of the language extant.—Boston Atlas and Bee.

A monument of learning in this single line of literary effort, such as no previous age has seen.—Bos Recorder

Making the entire work one which cannot be surpassed and which in our estimation will remain unequalled.—N E Farmer

These important improvements must make this far in advance of any competitor in the field—Boston Congregationalist

To every writer and speaker of English it is indispensible—Ballou's Pictorial

This new edition is a perfect mine of knowledge and a most complete book of reference—Com. Bulletin

Appears to be as complete as it is possible to be made —Boston Post.

From Hon. J. M. Gregory, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Mich.

Office Supt. Pub. Inst.,
Lansing, June 30, 1859.

Messrs. G. & C. MERRIAM,
Gentlemen:

I know not how to express my gratification with the valuable and beautiful features added to the great national work, Webster's Quarto Dictionary. They render it if possible still more worthy of the proud place it occupies as the great standard dictionary of our good English language. I say standard, for while a few scholars and others here and there, prefer other dictionaries, Webster's is beyond dispute the book of the people, the common standard of appeal among the masses, learned and unlearned, in our land. Nor need this be regretted, as long as its publishers take such unwearied pains to keep it abreast with every improvement made in the language. It can only express my very sincere hope that you may be fully rewarded for the good work you are doing in the cause of sound learning.

With considerations of high respect,
I remain, gentlemen, Yours truly,
G. M. GREGORY.
