St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 24.

In pursuance of orders received by telegraph from Washington, Gen. Harney, commanding the Western Department, will leave this morning for Fort Scott, taking the North Missouri and St. Joseph Railroad...

The Governor of Missouri has called on the State militia to defend the border. Gen. Frost's brigade five hundred strong, will leave in a special train for the seat of the border difficulties.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 24.

The position of the President is understood to be, though the South has just cause of complaint against the North, that no State is justified in seceding or revolutionary movements until every Constitutional measure for redress has been exhausted...

CHARLETON, S. C., Nov. 26.

The city is quiet to-day; the members of the Legislature here mostly gone to Columbia. The regular session opens to-night. The Governor's message will be read Tuesday. It is rumored that troops are coming to Fort Moultrie, but it is no evidence they will be sent to the Convention unless strongly committed to secession.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 27.

The Legislature has just read for the first time a bill to arm the State and raise $400,000 for that purpose. Offers of aid from other States continue to come to the Governor, and so strong and universal are the feelings that the moment that the command shall have been given, 75,000 soldiers, within boundaries from mountains to sea, will come forward to the defence of South Carolina...

Development of the Teeth of Cattle, and Mode of Ascertaining their age by the same.

The following useful information we copy from that excellent periodical, the American Stock Journal: "Persons acquainted with the dentition of 'meat stock,' can form a pretty accurate idea of age, from the period of birth up to that of adult life; and this method of ascertaining the age of an animal, is, probably, more correct than that which applies to horses, for by means of a rasp applied to the rings of the horns, any amount of imposition may be practiced, when it is well known that the same liberties are not to be taken with the teeth, without the chance of discovery. It is possible that some slight variations from the following rules, in the development of the teeth, yet such variations will not embrace a period of more than a month or six weeks, which at maturity does not amount to much, and may be considered as purely accidental—out of the ordinary course of nature."

The front teeth or temporary incisors are found in the lower jaw; there are eight of them, all prominent at the age of four weeks. The calf is usually born with three temporary grinders or molars; the fourth appears six months after birth; the fifth appears at the age of fifteen months; and the sixth is to be seen at the age of two and a half years; now the animal has a full mouth of temporary teeth, numbering thirty-two. At this period a very remarkable change is about to occur; the temporary ones having answered the purposes for which they were intended, are to be removed in the following order, so as to give place to others which shall correspond to the increase in the size of the jaw bones, and prove as durable as other bones in the body. At the age of two years the central or middle incisors (lower jaw) are shed and replaced by two permanent ones. At the age of three years the two incisors known as the inner-middle, undergo the same process. At the age of four the outer middle are shed, and replaced by permanent teeth. At the age of five, the corner incisors are also transformed in the same manner, and the animal has a full set (eight) of permanent front teeth. The first and second permanent molars known as grinders, appear in the upper and lower jaws on each side, at the age of two years, and at intervals of one year, the other four are successively cut; so that at the age of six years the animal has a full mouth of permanent grinders.

The Cattle Disease.

When the cattle disease that had prevailed in the vicinity of Brookfield, and in other places, suddenly disappeared in the early part of the summer, those whose faith in the fearful character of the disorder was fully confirmed, asserted that it would reappear more extensively in August and September, with the coming of cold nights and cold rains. This was predicted with the more confidence as that has been the experience with the disease in Holland. But August and September have come and gone, and we are now in the last days of October, but with all the fearful anxiety of the cattle raisers of the State, not one case of the disease has come to light—not one symptom has been discovered. The opinion begins to prevail either that there was an unnecessary alarm upon the subject, or that by the thorough manner in which the commissioners acted the disease has been exterminated, cut up, root and branch. It is yet too early to be fully assured upon this point, but certainly there is reason to hope that the dreaded calamity has been avoided.—Boston Traveller.
