POETRY.

For the Boston Cultivator. Liberty. Hark! what meaneth this commotion? What this noise, earth-shaking strife? See! the nation's heart is bleeding.

Through the haze that hangs above, Beams our Star of Destiny! All the world behold the vision, Freedom's glory shall be seen!

AGRICULTURAL.

The Republican Valley, Kansas. Mr. Enron: The crops in these parts truly presents a very promising appearance, now on this eighth day of June.

For the Nebraska Farmer. The ripening of the fruit is a very important matter, as many who cultivate the plant in this country, complain that they are sour and not fit for use.

For the Nebraska Farmer. Mr. Enron: It has often been a matter of wonder to me, how some farmers could get along farming, and yet have none of the implements necessary to carry on the business with.

When our land was new, say the first and second breaking, we raised endless quantities of squash pumpkins, and melons. I have, with little trouble, had a single pumpkin to weigh over one hundred pounds.

and much resembling a house fly, and by small you would pronounce it a near relation to the chinch bug. The Hubbard, Honohola, and Boston Marrow Squashes are almost entirely cut off by these pests of our field.

The United States Flag. Washington unfurled the first American flag, or as it was called, Union Flag, in January, 1776, when the British were in possession of Boston.

The Lawton Blackberry. Many persons who buy the small plants of the Lawton Blackberry, complain that they do not grow according to the description.

So stands the law at this day, and is unalterable but by law. The colors selected for the American flag, it will be seen, were similar to those in the English—white, the emblem of purity; blue, of fidelity; and red, of courage.

Soil Analysis vs. Experience. The knowledge gathered from experience is able in nine-nine cases out of a hundred to give a more truthful verdict in regard to the capacity of a soil, than any amount of analysis can do.

A Dolorous Deacon. I have seen a deacon in the pride of his humanity. He combed his hair straight, and looked studiously to the main chance; and while he looked, he employed himself in setting a good example.

To be always contented—Consider that you will never in this life be free from annoyances, and that you may as well bear them patiently as fret about them.

To govern children (and men too)—Commend them oftener than you blame them.

up from year to year. Now, I would say to all such farmers, stop for one moment, and consider and resolve that you will no longer impose upon the good nature of your neighbors, for your success and maintenance, but will provide for yourself to the best of your ability, remembering the adage—God helps those who help themselves.

Washington unfurled the first American flag, or as it was called, Union Flag, in January, 1776, when the British were in possession of Boston, and the Americans encamped at Cambridge.

Many persons who buy the small plants of the Lawton Blackberry, complain that they do not grow according to the description. They are a gigantic variety, but the first season, after transplanting, do not grow thrifty, but run out like the Dewberry.

The ripening of the fruit is a very important matter, as many who cultivate the plant in this country, complain that they are sour and not fit for use. This is always the case with this berry, even after it becomes a good black.
