ANNOUNCEMENT OF

Perils, Adventures and Suffering

Among the Sacessionists of Tennessee. The Manuscript is a nupleted, and is now in press and will be issued about the last of June. The appearance and typography of the work will be of the first class, and it will be fully and bandsomely illustrated with sketches of the scenes referred to, and a finely engraved STEEL PORTRAIT OF THE AUTHOR. As to its contents we have to hesitation in saying that his public will be storighted at this married of facts. It will be bore the publicult out and cruekt which marked he development of the secession consuracy in Tennestedecommunities once prosperous, and sundered families once happy; mere than all, it will expose the bad thirstiness by which the ringleaders of the conspiracy were stimulated to their work of crime and treason.

The narrative is one of personal experience. The author vouches for the accuracy of its statements. The public may therefore accept it as not only a reliable but a pecaliar chapter in the general history of the times, and we are confident that no more significant, startling, or instructive memorial of the rebellion, in its minute personal and social bearings, is now accessible. The public are well aware that Mr. BROWNLOW is a old speaking man. In this narrative of his sufferings. omposed mostly while in custody in the jail at Knoxville, he has uttered his thoughts in language of extrardinary force and fearlessness, scathing his adversaries even while in their power, and appealing to his countrymen even from his cell, with the urgency of a narryr.

It will be published in one volume, 12mo., handsomely bound in cloth, of about 400 pages. Printed on fine paper, and will be beautifully illustrated with 12 or 15 tine full page engravings besides the portrait referred to above. It will also contain a fac-simile of the Parson's tamous letter to J. P. Benjamin, where he tells the rebel Secretary of war that he "will do for the Southern Confederacy what the devil never did, viz. leave the state."
