The Next Delegate. On this subject the Omaha Republican clines becoming the "champion" of any man, "until the people of Nebraska shall have determined who is to be our standard-bearer in the coming contest, if indeed we are to have a contest at all."-It speaks impartially of the gentlemen nell, Sapp, Bowen and Taffe, In conclusion it says: "It is possible that the Republican and Democratic Conventions, which are both to assemble in Omaha on the same day, may agree upon some basis of harmonious action, and thus avoid entirely, a partizan contest. We trust it may be so. The present is no time for party bickerings and strife. The preservation of the Union and the putting down of the present rebellion are questions compared with which parties and men are as nothing. Whatever will tend most certainly to pro-individual interests. "If the two Conventions should happily ment favorites of both political parties, and select from among the people some gentleman who can combine the votes of fault to find with the result, but shall hail it as an augury of concord, unity and

While we are very decidedly in favor of the principles of the Republican party, we shall still be much pleased if the Conventions, in their wisdom, shall select some uncompromising union man. opon whom all ardent Union men can unite in supporting. We know of several prominent men in both parties who were even opposed to the cailing of any party conventions at the present time .--

Mr. Daily, though he was the first boldly to advocate a Republican organization in this county, some years ago when many that are now leading Repub licans were still in the bosom of the Dem ocratic party, is at present opposed to any mere party organization. The following is an extract of a letter from Daily on this subject, written to a friend in this city before he was aware that Conventions had been called:

"I am of the opinion that if it should be good policy, (which I doubt) to hold strictly a Republican convention at all, it initiative, and hold a strict party convention at a early day. I am for the Administration and the war, until rebellion and treason shall be put down; and this I consider the issue, and the only issue And while thousands, and tens of thou. sands, of Democrats are sustaining the Administration and the war with their these views to join the Republican party. I know there are a few leaders, most of whom have been Democrats, that are trying to organize a party, under the specious guise of a reorganization of the Democratic party, which new party they blamed the government for not reinforchope to fashion after their own hearts; and I have no doubt that those hearts are in sympathy with treason and traitors.-But let us wait until they act; and then if it is necessary, in order to defeat them, or to secure unanimity among ourselves, cism that it made little difference to Jackcall a convention of all who are for the son what disposition we made of our Administration and the war. Such a course will play out this "reorganization of the Democracy;" and to such a convention, all Democrats, who, like Ben to Gen. McClellan, Jackson would have Buttler, are all over for the Administra- taken Washington, which would have trop and the war, will feel free to come, and feel that they have as much right to come as a Republican.
