times heard of such reports being in circulation at Nebraska City and other places, we are justified in alluding to an unpleasant circumstance that did occur.

Four letters were sent from Brownville to Omaha by mail, directed to a certain address. The postmaster at Omaha, not knowing any person of the name the letters bore, supposed they A. M. were "Soldier's letters," and sent them is a package to the Nebraska Second .-They were opened by a person in the Nebraska City Company, named "Napoleon," the name on the letters. On perusing them he found they were not intended for him. He gave them to the Regimental Postmaster, Mr. RICHARDson, who immediately sent them to the Postmaster at Brownville, and he delivdo with the management of affairs in the gist in Chicago.
