UNION OF THE WORLD AND ARGUS.

The World, to which the New York Weekly Argus has been united, has to-day five times the aggregate circulation of any Democratic or conservative newspaper. It addresses weekly alone more than 100,000 subscribers and constant purchasers, and eaches at least half a million readers. With the steady increase in circulation which it now enjoys, hese numbers will soon be doubled. Nothing less than this should satisfy those who believe that the only hope of restoring the Union and the authority of the Constitution over a now distracted and divided country, lies in wresting power from the hands of those fanaticism has helped to provoke, invite, and prolong the war; and that to accomplish this end, no means is so effective as the diffusion. through able and enterprising newspapers, of sound political knowledge among the working men, the thinking men, and the votingmen of the North.

ics of the country.

The war in which the nation is engaged against armed and infotunted Rebels, and the radical policy of the administration which prolongs it, have con-spired to bring together upon one platform all conservative, Union-lovirfi and Constitution-loving men, of whatever former name and creed. Many of those who within the limits of the Constitution, fought the battles of the ballot box under the leadership of those patriotic statesmen of other and better days, Henry Ciay and Daniel Webster, together with the mosdes whose principles were those of such patriots as Andrew Jackson and William L Marcy, Silas Wright and Stephen A. important sposition it has assumed, of the influence which it exerts, and of the brilliant array of political and literary talent of the highest order which supports it. No publication of the kind has, in this country, so successfully combined the energy and freedom of the daily newspaper with the high-er literary tone of the first-class monthly; and it very certain that no magazine has given wider range to its contributors; or preserved itself so completely from the marrow inflaences of party or of faction. In times like the present, such a journal is either a power in the land or it is nothing. That the Continental is not the latter Is abundantly evadenced by what it has done-by the reflection of its counsels in many important public events, and in the character and power of those who are its staunchest supporters. Though but little more than a year has elapsed ince the Continental was first established, it has d iring that time sequired a sterength and a significance elevating it to a position far above that pre-viously centified a strongth and a political significance elevating it to a position far above that previously occupied by ony publication of the kind in America. In proof of which assertion we call at-
