Miss, and Mo. River Air Line R. R. To this projected road we called the attention of our readers some weeks since, at which time it was our impression that no definite steps had been had towards an organization to further the enterprise, We are, however, pleased to acknowledge the correction of our error by the Canton Press, published at Canton, Lewis county, Mo., the initial point on the Mississippi River for the above named road.

From a Circular, which appears in the Press, from H. Davis, President of the ad, it appears that work on this road was commenced in 1860, at Canton, and twenty-five miles weregraded ready for the ties, and the iron laid on the first fifteen miles. Besides this they had on hand, when the war broke out, rails sufficient to lay the graded portion and as the road to Memphis, Mo., a distance of forty-eight miles.

The war, of course, stopped this work, more in earnest in completing their line than this company. Mr. Davis's object now is to interest eastern capitalists in this road, and with this intention he had an interview with Mr. Colburn, of N.Y. who, he says, "readily suggested that i we would grade, tie and bridge the road, his company would iron it, we to hold our work as stock in the road." To this Mr. Davis objected, mainly because his company were not able to make such an advance at present. Mr. Davis says:

"My proposition is, that, we will raise $1,000,000 from Canton to the Missouri river, and give it to them if they will before we can close the matter, a survey must be made, and an estimate made of the cost."

The Circular of Mr. Davis is issued for the purpose of urging the counties through which the road will pass to make the necessary appropriations for the survey, which it is proposed to begin about the 10th of April.

Under this section it is held that the Homestead Claimant 1s allowed six months in which to make his actual settlement and residence upon the Homestead, and that a failure to reside upon the Homestead for more than six months at any time shall work a forfeiture, in case that fact shall be properly shown.

Whether the affidavit of Meier is true or not, I, of course, do not know. At the time it was made I believed it to be true, and since that time the public have been favored with Jamison and Bedford's side of the story, and will probably be able to form an opinion on the subject. I would say, however, that the tone in which the letters of these men are couched is not calculated to help them with thinking people. The language of abuse is generally employed where argument fails. It is much easier to say "you are a lier" than to show the falsity of statement by a calm denial, or a sound reason. It is, therefere, usually the case that this kind of language is used by persons of feeble intelect and bad instincts, by little vulgar boys, drunken Indians and idiots. We have lately seen in this city a case in point, that of the Wild Australian boy Tom, who could say 'you lie" almost as well as Messrs, Jamson and Bedford.

In this low and scurrilous field I do not propose to enter into a contest with these men, but shall cheerfully leave to them the bad pre-eminence of excellency in blackguardism.
