

VALEDICTORY.

Our Editorial duties in connection with the Advertiser closes with this issue. We have disposed of our interest and good will in the office to Col. R. W. Furnas, who will hereafter be known as its responsible Editor and business manager.

In assuming the control of the paper on the 5th day of November, 1887, we brought to the discharge of our new duties a desire and resolute determination to work for the development of the City of Brownville, the County of Nemaha, and the State of Nebraska, as against all individual interests; against all petty schemes of cliques and corrupt politicians, whether of high or low estate. Our aim was to encourage the permanent establishment and continuation of a just and beneficial policy of City, County and State government; one recognizing impartially the rights and privileges of the individual citizen; and one without odious class discriminations, favoring or oppressing any; to foster such a development of our internal resources as would conduce to the public good; to work for the interest of morality, education, general christianity, good government, the elevation of mankind, and for the amelioration of suffering humanity. In other words, to build up society by encouraging the good and exposing the bad. How far we have fulfilled our mission, we leave to the kind and impartial judgment of an indulgent public to determine. The pain which we have endured for the errors and failures which have resulted, are in a measure compensated by the fact that our conscience then approved of the course pursued. We have admitted advertising matter into our columns, not from choice, but from pecuniary necessity, which has been a source of regret to a few of our warmest friends; so that our editorial career has not been without its dark lines. Notwithstanding, the Advertiser has prospered, and at no time was our subscription list larger, or our advertising space more eagerly engaged by commercial men, than at the present.

As we review the past, and reflect upon the many encouraging words of commendation by hosts of true and tried friends which have reached our ears, we feel that we have succeeded in some measure in meeting the expectations of our readers and patrons. We feel truly grateful to all for the material aid they have rendered us in the discharge of our duties, public and private, since our connection with the Advertiser.

By constant work and labor in the office, we have become deeply attached to the paper which has grown up so rigorously under our fostering care. We have received the kindest treatment from our co-partners and all connected with the office; and we hope this interest and good feeling may increase with the coming years. We hand over the responsibilities of our position into other hands. Col. Furnas is one of the pioneer newspaper men in Nebraska—having established the Advertiser's office in Brownville in 1856. He was for seven years thereafter its sole proprietor. We entertain no fears of its future success. With hopeful feelings of the bright future that awaits our beloved paper, we retire from active duty with nothing but good will for the paper, its proprietors and its patrons. May God bless it.

The officers of the Nemaha Valley Lodge of Masons of Brownville were publicly installed on last Monday evening. The Hall was crowded with the brethren of the order, their wives and daughters, and with many visiting brethren from the Perù Lodge. After the ceremonies of installation were finished, the Stewards reported that refreshments had been provided for those present at William Allen's restaurant. After supper the company assembled in the Hall to listen to short speeches, and for social intercourse. We have attended many social gatherings in Brownville, but at none have the heartiest conventionalism of the day which afflict and impede social intercourse, were more heartily abandoned, and where each one was placed so squarely and unreservedly upon a level, as at this. The best of feeling prevailed. The short speeches of the older members were listened to with marked attention; and the allusion to the charter members—all now living but one—who twelve years ago aided in organizing the lodge, called out a shout of sympathy and happy sermons from Parson Davis, upon the mutability of all earthly joys, and the stern necessity for a preparation for the Lodge above. Although it was the grandest social gathering the order ever witnessed in Brownville, and a credit to the harmony, good feeling, and future interests of the fraternity in this city. May we live to witness more such.

A bill for the reconstruction of Georgia has been passed by Congress. By virtue of its provisions Governor Bullock will issue a proclamation requiring the Legislature, as it was before the negroes were expelled, to meet on Wednesday, the 12th of January. It originally consisted of seventy-four senators one hundred and seventy-five representatives. Since it first met two members have been killed, five have died, and fifteen are refugees from the State, while Bullock says twenty-two more are fugitive. The bill does not make any provisions for the district unrepresented.

Senator Tipton spent the holidays with his friends in Brownville. The work on his farm, the building of his residence thereon, and other private business demanding his attention during the short vacation.

The three Nebraska City dailies stand two to one in favor of the fact that our Savior was born on Christmas; one stoutly asserting it to have been the day of his crucifixion.

TO THE CHILDREN.

NUMBER SIX.

You have all spent a "Merry Christmas." We are happy when we see children enjoying themselves in youthful sport. All work and study would make James a dull boy. We used to enjoy hugely, myself, in playing with the children of the school district in which we lived; and even now look back to the times when we were young, with infinite pleasure. These plays served to develop the muscles, the bone, the limbs, and made us active, cheerful, and social. It gave us an excellent opportunity to study character, and draw out those powers of mind which serve us now that we are older in our intercourse with our fellow-men in the actual business of life.

Boys have their organizations, in which some must lead and control; some plan and others execute; and in which every boy can find something to do. These organizations are governed by no written code of laws, or formal putting of questions and passing of resolutions. They have no written records; still they are as exact, and have their presiding and controlling geniuses as surely as any in real life.

So we say we are in favor of letting boys have their fun and frolic in their own way; and we consider it just as necessary a portion of their education as any to be obtained in the school room. We hope none of our youthful readers will indulge in plays that tend to develop immoral habits. We hope none will encourage or countenance brutality in boys or in animals. Let them choose such as tend to develop the physical, mental or moral nature of those who participate therein; those that will make boys better men, and girls better women.

But as we have others to talk with you this week, we will give the floor to them, and read what they say. They have a rich and varied experience, and will no doubt interest you.

Children love those who show an interest in them; they love those who come down to their thoughts and feelings. I'll tell you children, what I have been thinking about lately: When I was in Iowa, we used to have a rousing Sabbath School, and we hardly ever had much trouble about getting the children to attend; I think one reason was, we used to take pains to get up good times for the children.

We never spent three months without having some gathering for the benefit of the children—a festival, picnic, jubilee or something of the kind; and we did have some glorious times.

I know some of the old people used to grumble and say, "they never had any such things when they went to school," and "it was all foolishness," "a waste of time," and all such kind of stuff, but I used to think of the story of the bear with a sore head, and just let them grumble. I know the children must have some recreation, and if they cannot have good, they will have bad.

I find the people in Nebraska very similar to those in Iowa; they say, "it is so much trouble and fuss;" "it don't pay;" "they are tired of it." Now, I do not doubt it in the least, that old folks are tired of it; but who ever heard any boy or girl say they were tired of it? I never did; did you? Well, children, I think they forget a very important thought, that children are not like old people, and they must have something in which they are interested to occupy their minds. Old people forget that for two or three weeks before a festival, children's minds are taken up with that, and after it has gone by, they find something to think of and talk about for a month, and that it is a green spot in their lives; and they look back to it with a great deal of pleasure.

Now, Children, I have been real sorry that older people don't feel willing to trouble themselves a little for your pleasure; and here at Perù, I just feel real bad for the children, for there are very little pains taken to make them happy.

There is once in a while a young old man who can enter into the hearts of children and make them happy. I think Mr. Ebricht is one, don't you? and I say, Lord give us more such men in Nebraska—at least one in every Sunday School—and then I know the wants of the children will be cared for.

Now, I am real glad Mr. Church has started a Children's Department in the Advertiser, and I am going to write for it once and awhile if he will let me. I believe he is another man who thinks of the children; and I know I do, very often.

So children, I guess we better start a Children's Friend Society, and we'll elect Mr. Church President and Mr. Ebricht Secretary, and I will make the motions and see if we can't do something for the benefit of the children in Nemaha county.

Now, who will join our Children's Friend Society? All who will, send your names to the Secretary.

National Cemeteries.

We take the following from the Daily Globe of Dec. 20th. It has the ring of truth: Mr. THAYER. I offer the following resolution, and ask for its present consideration:

Resolved, That the Attorney General be directed to furnish to the Senate a copy of any opinion delivered by him relating to our national cemeteries in the lately rebel States, and on the question whether it is necessary for the permanent continuance of the States in which those cemeteries are located for the permanent continuance of the said cemeteries therein.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution. Mr. THAYER. I desire to state the reasons which have induced me to offer this resolution. I have seen floating around in the newspapers what purported to be an extract from the opinion of the Attorney General on this subject, and I desire to know the facts. The statement is made that he has rendered an opinion that it is necessary to obtain the consent of the Legislatures of the States within which those cemeteries are located for their permanent continuance, and that they should be paid for. I have been led to believe, and I still believe, that those who fell fighting in behalf of our national flag, and who have left unqualified titles to the resting-places where their bodies sleep. If they are to be disturbed on the refusal of the Legislatures to give their consent, I desire to know it; or, rather, I am opposed to asking the consent of any Legislature or of anybody else to secure the undisturbed possession of the soil enclosed within those cemeteries. I think I can assure you that I am not a hero, but I am ready, for one, to say that if need be I will fight through another war to hold forever sacred the graves where our heroes sleep.

The resolution was adopted.

Grand Concert.

The concert given in London, Dec. 18th, by Prof. Martin and Troupe, was received with high favor. The singing was exquisite. The sweet sound which came forth from the organ said plainly, its keys were touched by the fingers of a master. Music hath a marvelous power to refine and elevate the human mind. Every one who has an opportunity should avail himself of it, and go and hear this troupe of sweet singers.
