FORM OF TEACHERS' SCHEDULE Adopted by the Normal Class-

"A place for everything and everything in its place" is good maxim, especially so for the teachers, for if there is any calling or avocation in life which requires order and exactness, it is the business of teaching. Yet, how many teachers there are whose transactions are kept in so loose and disororderly a manner as to put to defiance all method or form; and the task which otherwise would be pleasant and agreeable, becomes a tiresome and unsatisfactory undertaking.

The merchant who wishes to be suchis accounts together in an inextricable way, but is careful to have everything arranged with order and precision. His books present a concise as well as copious exhibit of all his affairs. It takes but a glance to ascertain the exact state of his business, whether prosperous or adverse; and the task is performed with ease and dispatch, which, if not systematically arranged, would be arduous indeed. So, also, order in all things is the mark of a good teacher. He cannot fail to command respect as a teacher, who is prepared if called upon, to exhibit the exact standing of his school in every department without spending a weary hour of toil in deciphering his vague and ambigious statement. To accomplish this purpose much depends upon the form of the range properly, is often a dreaded task to the teacher. And then, frequently, he finds that it does not meet every requirement; either it is unwieldy and inconvenient, or some exigency has been left unprovided. To meet these difficulties, to some extent, and contribute something toschedule as a simple and comprehensive method of keeping a school register. Although we do not claim that it is entirely original with us, we have introduced some improvements which cannot fail to be useful and convenient. We have recommended a system of marking which will enable the teacher to "balance" his books at require but a glance to ascertain the standing and attendance of each pupil and the average of the whole school for any day or week in the year. Also, at the end of the term this method will prevent the arduous and perplexing task, of which so many complain, of enumerating separate marks to ascertain the average attendance, which is unsatisfactory and uncertain | cord or making out the final report, at the best. Missouri Fruits-Hints to Producer A meeting of horticulturalists was beld at Kansas City the other day. The President believed that, as an apple region, Missouri was unsurpassed. Apples are better flavored, larger, more solid, and better keepers here than anywhere else. They can ruise good apples as far South as Boston Mountain—bbelow that they fail; but then they have peanuts and figs. He thought the railroads centering here gave great advantage to fruit raisers; hey open up many markets, and cruit needs rapid transportation. He did not think much fruit would be sent southward, but we have the mountains and plains markets, and our apples are of such superior quality hat they would bring the highest orice in New York and other eastern narkets. He had spoken to directors I eastern railroads on the subject of vestern fruit, and they replied "that there was not enough of it to make it of interest to them; there was no place where they could load a train with kinds that are good in the East are not good here. Some of the seedlings raised in Arkansas and Missouri are uperior to any imported kinds, and hey have the advantage of being celimated; we know how long they ill continue bearing, and how much
