

THE ADVERTISER.

Published every Thursday by
CAFFREY & HACKER,
Proprietors.
One—No. 74 McPherson's Block, up Stairs,
BROWNVILLE, NEBRASKA.

Terms, in Advance:

One copy, one year. $2.00
Two copies, six months. 1.00
Three copies, three months. 50

READING MATTER ON EVERY PAGE

ESTABLISHED 1858.
Oldest Paper in the State.

BROWNVILLE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1873.

VOL. 17.—NO. 33.

THE ADVERTISER

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	TIME.	PRICE.
Full page.	Week.	$2.00
Half page.	Week.	1.00
Two-thirds page.	Week.	2.00
Three-quarters page.	Week.	2.50
Four-fifths page.	Week.	3.00
Five-sixths page.	Week.	3.50
Six-sevenths page.	Week.	4.00
Seven-eighths page.	Week.	4.50
Eight-ninths page.	Week.	5.00
Nine-tenths page.	Week.	5.50
Ten-elevenths page.	Week.	6.00
Eleven-twelfths page.	Week.	6.50
Twelve-thirteenths page.	Week.	7.00
One-quarter page.	Week.	.50
One-half page.	Week.	.75
One-third page.	Week.	.80
One-fourth page.	Week.	.40
One-eighth page.	Week.	.20
One-sixteenth page.	Week.	.10
One-thirty-second page.	Week.	.05
One-hundred-and-twenty-eighth page.	Week.	.02

Legal advertisements algebrated. One square (12 columns by 12 lines) $1.00, each subsequent insertion .50¢.

All transacted advertisements must be paid for before service.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY.

SOME MURDER STATISTICS.

What a Correspondent has to say in the Way of a Hotel Keeper that Out-Skilled Killer.

(From the Kansas City Times.)

Appropos of the Bender tragedy memory recalls a similar incident that happened years ago in South Carolina, which, no doubt, some of your readers will recollect rather vividly.

The road between Charleston and Columbia used to be a great hotel road, which was one day bought by an English millionaire and lady of very refined address, and elegant appearance. It was somewhat complicated upon that they should seek such a public and rather disastrous place and business; but evidently soon subsided and things rocked along in their usual way. Soon, however, travelers began to be unaccountably disappeared, could not be found.

Business proceeded with the Englishman, a better and more accommodating place could be found nowhere. For several years it thus continued, and though sorrowing friends mourned the loss of many members of their respective families, no trace of them or the cause of their disappearance could be found. One night as the moon sailed into the heavens, a passenger, who had stopped at the stage stand for the night, was awoke by the light of the moon pouring in through its window. Perhaps he felt a little uneasiness, but had a large sum of money in his belt about his person. He woke not too soon, for, by the light, he saw a shadow or form, on its knees, crawling toward his bed; he grasped a pistol he had, and springing upright in bed aimed it directly at the object and called a halt. What further passed we do not know, for he would never tell. However, he escaped with his life, but the report was made that it was unsafe to stop at the "Half Way House." This aroused the neighborhood; a servant was caught and whipped till he confessed enough to satisfy all that this was the "Half of the whole way House" of death. The parties were arrested, the house sacked, and down in the cellar or basement, was found the proof positive of guilty Seven-bodies, some merely the bones were unearthed and recognized as the ones who had so mysteriously disappeared.

Money, money, "the root of all evil," was found hoarded away, and little valuables were claimed by the deceased one's friends. With cool impudence and bravado, Hauteaur tried to exculpate himself and his wife; deemed women too precious to swing for any crime; but justice sent them into the air as high as Haman, and, with reliefing, the people saw their stark, lifeless bodies given to friend in Philadelphia.

It will be well if Postmaster James gives the example of Postmaster Booth of Brooklyn, in prohibiting the delivery of any cards of an indecent or libelous nature. In London a recent important slander case has hinged upon a postal card, which, bearing remarks damaging to her character from an unknown source, was received by a young lady, and was the subject of a series of hand-writings to a discreditable person who was at once arrested on a charge of slander of which, if we are not mistaken, he was convicted.

It is said that one of the first to use the card as an advertising medium in England was doubtless pronounced. In fact, so far as we can learn, with the exceptions of those who used them for advertising purposes, the cards were employed as the medium of joking messages. A photographic reporter connected with the present revolution in France, and the present war in Ireland, and the like, was arrested and brought to trial, and was condemned to death. However, he escaped with his life, but the report was made that it was unsafe to stop at the "Half Way House." This aroused the neighborhood; a servant was caught and whipped till he confessed enough to satisfy all that this was the "Half of the whole way House" of death. The parties were arrested, the house sacked, and down in the cellar or basement, was found the proof positive of guilty Seven-bodies, some merely the bones were unearthed and recognized as the ones who had so mysteriously disappeared.

Money, money, "the root of all evil," was found hoarded away, and little valuables were claimed by the deceased one's friends. With cool impudence and bravado, Hauteaur tried to exculpate himself and his wife; deemed women too precious to swing for any crime; but justice sent them into the air as high as Haman, and, with reliefing, the people saw their stark, lifeless bodies given to friend in Philadelphia.

They proved to have been members of a band of robbers that had been driven from England to let us say—play their murderous trade in other and better countries.

Herold on the Locomotive.

Concerning the Engineer Guild, founded in New York after the accident at Rutland Switch, with his hand upon the throttle-bar, the Boston Transcript says:

"No one can read the news from that part of the devoted conduct of the engineer and his fireman, without feeling that they were men deserving to have their memories honored with reverence for the self-possession and pluck they exhibited at the awful moment, when, as if instinctively, or from trained habits, they were bound to stand and meet death unflinchingly, before it could escape them. Then, as if to put the tenderest pathos into the lurid tragedy, how touching this anecdote related of the engineer."

His home was in that part of Providence known as Elmwood, his house being close to the railroad crossing.

Whenever he passed this spot, whether in daylight or darkness, he used to make a short popular signal on his locomotive, by pulling a string, indicating to his wife, and a notification that he was there and 'all right.' Year in and year out this signal never failed.

With the high tariffs of grain, a stock bullion, being never able to get to market as fast as he could, he was compelled to sell his farm, and leave his wife and children.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

He sold his farm, and left his wife and children, and went to work as a laborer in a coal mine in New Jersey.

Nebraska Advertiser.

BROWNVILLE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1873.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

J. H. Broady,

A. STORRY AND COUNSELOR AT LAW—

Counsel over State Bank, Brownville, Neb.

E. W. Thomas,

A. STORRY AT LAW—

Attala, S. C., and Co., Hardware Store, Brown-

ville, Neb.

Stoney French,

A. STORRY AND COUNSELOR AT LAW—

Office over State Bank, Brownville, Neb.

Still Schick,

A. STORRY AND COUNSELOR AT LAW—

Office over State Bank, Brownville, Neb.

W. T. Rogers,

A. STORRY AND COUNSELOR AT LAW—

Attala, S. C., and Co., Hardware Store, Brown-

ville, Neb.

Hewett & Newman,

A. STORRY AND COUNSELOR AT LAW—

Attala, S. C., and Co., Hardware Store, Brown-

ville, Neb.

PHYSICIANS.

A. HOLLYDAY, M. D., Physician, Surgeon and Obstetrician, in practice in 1858.

McPherson's Block, Second Street, and

McPherson's Clinic and Dispensary, Brown-

ville, Neb.

C. F. STEWART, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, in practice in 1858.

McPherson's Clinic and Dispensary, Brown-

ville, Neb.

H. L. MATHEWS, Physician and Surgeon, in practice in 1858.

McPherson's Clinic and Dispensary, Brown-

ville, Neb.

NOTARIES & COLLECTION AGENTS.

J. W. Brush,

A. NOTARY PUBLIC AND COLLECTOR,

Office in McPherson's Block, corner First

and Second Streets.

Will give prompt attention to the collection of taxes throughout the State.

RICHARD V. HUGHES, Real Estate Agent and Tax Collector,

Office in McPherson's Block, corner First

and Second Streets.

WILLIAM H. HOOVER, Real Estate and Tax Collector,

Office in McPherson's Block, corner First and Second Streets.

GUN SMITH,

A. NOTARY PUBLIC, Sole Agent for R. W. Smith's

Patent Medicine, in Brownville, Neb.

BLACKSMITHS.

J. W. & J. C. GIBSON, Blacksmiths and Horse

Shoers, First Street, between Main and Atlantic,

Brownville, Neb. Work done to order and repairing done promptly.

JOSEPH SHUTZ,

Manufacturers of Cigars,

and Wholesale Dealers in Chewing and Smoking Tobacco.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR COHIBA STICKS TOBACCO.

Orders from the country promptly filled, and satisfaction guaranteed.

CLOCKS, WATCHES, Jewelry

JOSEPH SHUTZ,

No. 59 Main Street, Brownville.

Keeps constant stock on hand and well selected of genuine articles in his line.

Also a good assortment of ladies', lady

Men's and Children's Hats and Jewelry.

Custom-made and repaired.

ALL WORK WARRANTED.

FRANZ HELMER,

WAGON & BLACKSMITH'S SHOP

ONE DOOR WEST OF COURT HOUSE.

WAGON MAKING, Repairing,

Promises, and all work done in the best possible manner, satisfaction guaranteed.

THE GEM, as its name indicates, an elegant stationary Top Desk.

"ECONOMY" absolutely does competitive work.

We are also making a full line of Stationery Sets.

Discounted and Special.

Discounted and Special.