It is full of old and gentle remembrances.] The schools-the schools of other days! Those were the schools for me.
When, in a frock and tronsers dressed,
I learned my A B C.

When, with my dinner in my hat, I trudged away to school; For school-ma ams bad a rule.

Nor dared to stop, as boys do now-With locks well comind, and face so clean, (Boys washed their faces then.)

And a "stick horse" to ride upon-What happy little men! And if a traveler we met,

We threw no sticks or stones. To fright the horses as they passed, Or break good people's bones.

But, with our bats beneath our arms, We bent our heads tuil low; For ne'er the school ma'am failed to ask, "Boys, did you make a bow?" And all the little firls with us

And hide their ankles 'neath their gowns-(Girls don't have ankles now.) We stole no fruit, nor tangled grass, We played no noisy games: And when we spoke to older folks,

Would courtesy full low;

Put handles to their names. And when the hour of school had come-Of bell we had no used; The school ma'am's rap upon the glass Each one would quickly heed.

The school ma'am-Heaven bless her name When shall we meet her like: She always wore a green calash,

A callon vandyke. She never sported pantalettes, No silks on her did rustle;

Her dress hung gracefully around, She never woren bustle. With modest mein and loving heart,

Her daily task was done,

And true as needle to the pole, The next one was begun. The days were all slike to her, The evenings just the same,

And neither brought a change to us, Till Saurelay forenoon came. And then we had a "spelling match,"

And learned the sound of A.
The months and weeks that made the year, The hours that made the day. And on that day we saw her smile-

No other time smiled she-'Twas then she told me learnedly, When next "leap year' would be. Alus!-kind son!, though leap year came,

And went, full many a time, In "single blessedness" she toiled, Till far beyond her prime. But now, indeed, her toils are o'er,

Her lessons all are said. Her roles well learned, her words well speli's She's gone up to the HEAD.
