

HAY-MAKERS' SONG.
Come on to the scented clover fields,
At early dawn of day,
To the earth her generous bounty yields—
To the clover fields away.
The sun is painting now the hills
With its genial golden ray,
And the music of the singing rills
Is calling them away.

SHARP.
But a few days ago we called attention to the St. Louis Democrat's statement that so through contracts on grain from that city to Liverpool can be made, although the great water route has been in agitation for years. We have now to announce that thro' contracts can be made from Kansas City, although our favorite route has been in agitation but a month. Such is the difference between men who do business and those who merely talk about it.—Kansas City Journal of Commerce.

SHARP.
We have to announce that from St. Louis is departing regularly every week for Liverpool, an average of 100,000 bushels of wheat and corn, on rates 10 cents per bushel lower than the lowest through rate Kansas City will ever be able to make via Galveston. Of what use to Kansas City is a "through rate" that is so high no one can make use of it? St. Louis is not talking about shipping—she is shipping; and after Kansas City shippers via Galveston have received their account sales of the first few cargoes, it will be time for the Kansas City Journal of Commerce to tout off its "talker-box" again.—St. Louis Democrat.

SWARMING BEES.
A bee keeper gives the following plan to prevent a swarm of bees from getting away from the hive, with the statement that after ten years' experience he has never known it to fail but once: As soon as they show the first symptoms of swarming, stop up some of the outlets to the hive, so as to force them to be a considerable time coming out. The swarm being made up in part of young bees, many of which cannot fly well, and as nothing can be done by the swarm until all are out, and fly about in the air, by prolonging their exit the feeble ones become tired, and finding their plans frustrated, they alight to arrange their journey. If they can leave the old hive all at once, they care very little about alighting.

FLYING THE AMERICAN FLAG.
I believe in the Fourth of July, in the popular acceptance of the term. I believe in the Fourth all over, from the crown of my head to the sole of my feet. As a boy and young man I fired my guns and had a good time. I like to see boys do the same now. You may belong to a city council and may pass volumes of ordinances against guns and fire crackers; you may send platoons of policemen to arrest the boys who willfully violate your ordinances, but you still have within you a secret sympathy with the young rascals, and you like to be awakened on the morning of the 4th by great bells and guns, even if you do wear a little about it. I believe in the Fourth of July; I believe in "sentiment"; I believe in the flag; and I honor the memory of Daniel Webster when I remember how he pointed up through yonder rotunda at the "gorgeous ensign of the republic," and trampled with magnificent scorn upon the poor, puny, contemptible spirit that dared to ask, "How much is this worth?" God bless Daniel Webster for that one paragraph! I was grieved, not angry—grieved in my very soul—when I heard men on this very floor, of wealth and culture, honor and ability, sneering at what they call "sentiment," and laughing at "tears," and when I heard a Massachusetts man, from the very hills of Berkshire, ridiculing the "eagle" and all that "clap trap." God grant that the day may be far distant when what you call "Fourth of July talk" shall be out of fashion. Let it always be in fashion. Our million of boys in blue talked it from the cradle; and while, perhaps, infidels to some government sneered at them, and ridiculed the "cross roads talk about the Fourth of July and the eagle," those brave boys believed in it; five hundred thousand graves bear witness to their belief. God help the poor narrow soul whose narrow eyes never moisten at the sight of that flag.—Extract from Gov. Hawley's recent speech.

A HUSBAND SOLD.
Some years since, when all the world was mad upon lotteries, the Irish cook of a middle-aged, single gentleman, drew from his hand his earnings and savings of some years. Her employer was anxious to know the cause, and she told him that having repeatedly dreamed that a certain number was a great prize, she had bought the whole ticket. He called her a fool and never lost a chance to tease her on the subject. She seemed to take his taunts in good humor, saying it would all turn out right by-and-by.

CELLARS.—Cellars should be kept constantly clean, as much as your parlor. It is the easiest thing in the world, if you attend to it daily, and only becomes a heavy task when you allow a month's accumulations to remain undisturbed. It is hardly necessary to add that fevers have been contracted by breathing the miasma created in an ill-kept cellar.

A Missouri lady who went over to "Slab Town," Kansas, to teach a class, writes, that she asked one of her pupils—a girl of about nineteen years—"Who was Jesus Christ?" and received for an answer: "Dunno; I haint much acquainted in these parts; this is the first time I been here."

"Say Pomp, you nigger, whar you get dat new hat?" "Why, at de shop, of course." "What is de price of such an article as dat?" "I don't know, nigger—I don't know—de shop keeper waz't dar."

A little boy ran into the house last Saturday, crying at the top of his voice because another boy would not let him put mud on his head with a shingle. Some children are just like their parents—no accommodation about them.

"I want to know," said a creditor, fiercely, "when are you going to pay me what you owe me?" "When I'm going to pay? Why, you're a pretty fellow! Do you take me for a prophet?"

"Sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."—The culinary adornments which suffice for the female of the race Auser may be relieved also with the masculine adjunct of the same places.

London advertisements runs thus: A country priest will say mass once a week for any one who will regularly send him the Times newspaper, second hand on the day of its publication.
