ALONE. BY MARY LEMAN GILLIES. "Twas midnight, and he sat alone— The husband of the dead; That day the dark dust had been thrown Upon her buried head. Her orphaned children round him slept, But in their sleep would moan: Then fell the first tear he had wept— He felt he was alone.

MARRYING A BEGGAR. CHAPTER I. "So much for bringing poor relations into the house! I really believe that Charles has fallen in love with the girl!" exclaimed Mrs. Mason to her husband, a merchant in moderate circumstances in the city of Boston.

MARRYING A BEGGAR. CHAPTER II. Uncle Joseph was a Calcutta merchant, in which capacity he had accumulated an immense fortune. Being a bachelor, the probable disposition of his property became a question of considerable interest among his relations.

MARRYING A BEGGAR. CHAPTER III. For several weeks Grace, with such assistance as Mr. Mason and Charles could give, nursed the invalid with the most untiring devotion. All her time was spent by his bedside. She was all gentleness and sympathy, bearing patiently with his petulance and ill-humor, and never betraying the slightest appearance of anger when he scolded and even swore at her.

ANDERSONVILLE. Some Reminiscences of the Georgia Prison Pen. A Captured Union Soldier's Story of His Sufferings. From the Ohio State Journal.

Those Enormous Expenses. Notwithstanding all the howling about the corruption of the Republican party, it is a demonstrable fact that the expenses, deducting those which appertain exclusively to the war, are less per head than they were under the Democratic administration of James Buchanan.

ANDERSONVILLE. Some Reminiscences of the Georgia Prison Pen. A Captured Union Soldier's Story of His Sufferings. From the Ohio State Journal. When rough sheds have been built to cover the manure heap, the crops fertilized by this pile have been increased in productivity sufficient to pay for the shed-covering the first year. We have never seen any exact figures of the proportionate value of covered manures, that we remember, until the following, which we find by Lord Kincaid, a Scotch land owner and farmer. They present the best statement possible, we think, of the advantages of the plan:

Those Enormous Expenses. Notwithstanding all the howling about the corruption of the Republican party, it is a demonstrable fact that the expenses, deducting those which appertain exclusively to the war, are less per head than they were under the Democratic administration of James Buchanan. The following figures, in round numbers, for the year ending June 30, 1875, tell their own story:
